farmers direct control over water sources These new technologies allow relatively small farm sizes which can be adequately managed by the surveyed farmers As a result high productivities are achieved The hydrological impact of upscaling irrigation in the sub basin is sustainable and will maximize the overall benefits derived from water resources in the Volta Basin

Committee for Inland Fisheries of Africa,Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,1994-01-01 Report of the Advisory Roundtable on the Assessment of Inland Fisheries Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2018-11-23 The two and a half day Advisory Roundtable was convened to contribute to FAO s response to the request by the 32nd Session of the Committee on Fisheries COFI to advise FAO on its approach to developing a more comprehensive report on methods and data and analytical approach which could be used to provide a credible objective and replicable assessment of inland fisheries and ii provide guidance on tools that could be provided to member states seeking advice with respect to assessing the status of their inland fisheries yield production threats drivers predicting future impacts and how to quantify the effect of mitigation adaptation measures on fisheries The roundtable reviewed and discussed the background that had led up to the meeting to scrutinize the purpose of an assessment and the scope of coverage and how this could be used to determine the status of inland fisheries It further developed the criteria to conduct such an assessment and then attempted to apply the approach to a number of basins This practical exercise was based on concrete examples from countries or basins with which the experts were familiar It was concluded by the roundtable that the use of a dual index approach is the right way to go and that it can be used to assess fisheries both at the national basin regional and global levels although different levels of resolution will be required and may thus have somewhat different data requirements Adding a valuation element will direct investment towards the fisheries that provides most benefit to society in the context of the priorities set at the national level At the national level data may include yields catches threats and measures that can be used to estimate future adaptive capacity For global level analysis an index approach will be necessary relying on big data Any information system should be useful to serve first and foremost the countries that collect analyse and provide the data Reports to FAO that could be compiled into a global picture of the state of inland fisheries would be a value added product of this process The national reports would also have utility in reporting on progress towards the Sustainable Development Goals Aichi Targets

Inland Fisheries ,2008-04-15 The current high demand for fish and increased awareness of the role of the environment in supporting human well being has led to a situation where attitudes to inland water resources are changing rapidly Trends in resource use and environmental impact are very evident in inland waters which are particularly vulnerable as they act as collectors of all the activities occurring in their basins and rank as some of the most endangered ecosystems in the world The principle changes influencing the evolution of the aquatic resource for fisheries are described in this book which has been compiled for the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations Regional Symposium on Sustainable Development of Inland Fisheries Under Environmental Constraints Indo-Pacific Fishery Commission,1995-01-01 A review of major river basins and large lakes relevant to inland fisheries Ainsworth, R., Cowx, I.G., Funge-Smith, S.J.,2021-01-21 This review presents summary information on 45 river and great lake basins of the world which support inland fisheries The information presented is drawn from published information in peer reviewed journals as well as grey literature Each basin summary is presented in a common format covering the description of the fishery estimates of catch and numbers of people engaged in the fishery important biodiversity features and threats to the fishery An analysis of the replacement costs of inland fish of the basin is also presented This is expressed in terms of the water land and greenhouse gas footprint that would arise if the inland fish that are currently produced had to be replaced with other forms of food such as aquaculture fish livestock or field crops
