Draznin, 2000-11-30 Through a detailed description of the life and activities of the middle class married woman of London between 1875 and 1900 this study reveals how housewives unwittingly became engines for change as the new century neared In marked contrast to the stereotypical depictions of Victorian women in literature and on television Draznin reveals a woman seldom seen the stay at home housewife whose activities were not much different than those of her counterparts today By exploring her daily activities how she cleaned her home disciplined her children managed her servants stretched a limited budget and began to indulge herself one discovers the human dimension of women who lived more than a century ago While most studies of this period consider values aspirations and attitudes this book concentrates on actions what these women did all day to provide readers with a new perspective on Victorian life Late Victorian London was a surprisingly modern city with a public face of well lit streets an excellent underground railway system and extended municipal services In the home gas stoves were replacing coal ranges and household appliances were becoming more common Having both money to spend and a strong incentive to buy the new laborsaving devices ready to wear clothing and other manufactured products the middle class matrons resistance to change gave way to a rising consumer culture Despite her nearly exclusive preoccupation with home and family these urban women became agents for the modernization of Britain History, 1912 Announcement Horace H.
