Depression-Era Sculpture of the Bay Area Nicholas A. Veronico, Betty S. Veronico, 2017-08-07 The Great Depression was a terrible blow for the Bay Area's thriving art community. A few private art projects kept a small number of sculptors working but for the majority prospects of finding new commissions were grim. By the mid 1930s President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal program had gathered steam and assistance was provided to the nation's art community. Salvation came from the Works Progress Administration WPA which employed thousands of artists to produce sculpture for public venues. The Bay Area art community subsequently benefitted from the need to fill the then forthcoming Golden Gate International Exposition GGIE with sculpture of all shapes and sizes. As bad as the Depression was its legacy more than 80 years on is one of beauty. The Bay Area is dotted with sculpture from this era the majority of it on public display. Depression Era Sculpture of the Bay Area is a visual tour of this artistic bounty.

South San Francisco, 2004 Locals call it South City. The founding fathers always intended South San Francisco to be an industrial leader clearly distinguishing it from its northern neighbor. Fuller Paints, Pacific Coast Steel and Western Meats made an early impact on the city's economic growth. During wartime the development of a deep water harbor brought shipbuilding to Oyster Point. The historic sign on Sign Hill still reads South San Francisco. The Industrial City but evolution is the name of the game and the workhorse of the city's modern economy is biotech research and development.

South Santa Clara County Sam Shueh, 2008 South Santa Clara County situated at the south end of San Francisco Bay was a cattle ranching area in the 19th century. With 300 days of sun a year it became a major agricultural and food production center. Since the 1960s the electronics and computer industries have transformed the Valley of the Heart's Delight into a world class technology center. City dwellers are now taking up residence in an area once steeped in agriculture with more than 240,000 people making their homes here. Featured in this book are south San Jose, Coyote Valley, Morgan Hill, Gilroy and unincorporated parts of the south county such as East Santa Cruz Mountains and Pacheco Pass.

Redwood City Nicholas A. Veronico, Betty S. Veronico, Reg McGovern, Janet McGovern, 2010 Located midway on the San Francisco Peninsula Redwood City's outstanding weather begat the motto Climate Best by Government Test. Once a Mexican rancho Redwood City became the port for exporting timber from the coastal mountains and later the San Mateo County seat. Through a series of contrasting vintage and modern images this book shows the city's amazing transformation.

Alvarez,2004 Everything in Placer County history leads to gold from its name the Spanish term for gold bearing gravel to the mining camps that sprouted overnight in its rugged river canyons Ecstatic cries of Gold on the American River in 1848 launched the largest voluntary migration in the history of the world As claims panned out thousands of miners swarmed like locusts between the rough and tumble mining camps from the crest of the Sierra Nevada to the Sacramento Valley Some camps disappeared along with the easy placer gold others found new methods to extract gold deposited deep in quartz veins or underground and developed into stable towns that still stand Sometimes washing whole hillsides into rivers hydraulic mining was outlawed in the 1880s but the colorful characters and tall tales of the Gold Rush live on Big Sur Shelley Alden Brooks,2017-11-21 Jeffers Country Nature s highway Big Sur utopia U S A Open space at continent s end The influence of the counter culture community and State The battle for Big
