

▲ Britain acquired Pinang (1786), Province Wellesley (1802), Singapore (1819) and Malacca (1824), which were constituted (with the addition in 1846 of Labuan in Borneo) as the Straits Settlements in 1826, in order to service its trade with China. Its conquests in Lower Borneo following the Second Anglo-Burmese War (1822) – including Paga and the seaports of Martaban, Bessan and Rangoon – were designed to protect India's eastern frontier. Meanwhile, the victory of the Dutch over Wihada-influenced Muslim reformers in western Sumatra in the Padri War (1821–38) enabled them to undertake limited expansion along the east and west coasts of Sumatra. Dutch authority was established in Jambi (1834), Indragiri (1838), Singkil and Barus (1839–40), but attempts to move further north were thwarted by the combination of the resurgent power of the Sultanate of Aceh and the influence of the mainly British and Chinese merchants in the Straits Settlements.

Southeast Asia In The New Century:

Democracy in East Asia Larry Diamond, 2013-02-15 Predicts that East Asia with its remarkable diversity of political regimes economies and religions would likely be the critical arena in the global struggle for democracy a prediction that has proven prescient This title offers a treatment of the political landscape in both Northeast and Southeast Asia The Dragon Looks South Bronson Percival, 2007 Southeast Asia in the New Century Samuel C. Y. Ku, 2002 An examination of the development of Southeast Asia in the new century from different perspectives as the various contributing authors explore and discuss the opportunities and challenges facing it While several articles are in the discipline of political science there are also articles from the perspectives of economics education and political economy Southeast Asia and the Rise of Chinese and Indian Naval Power Sam Bateman, Joshua Ho, 2014-06-03 This book examines the emerging maritime security scene in Southeast Asia It considers highly topical implications for the region of possible strategic competition between China and India the rising naval powers of Asia with a possible naval arms race emerging between these countries both with naval force development and operations As part of its Look East policy India has deployed naval units to the Pacific Ocean for port visits and exercises both with East Asian navies and the US Navy but India is also concerned about the possibility of the Chinese Navy operating in the Indian Ocean Even as the US India defence relationship continues to deepen the US and China are struggling to build a closer links China's and India's strategic interests overlap in this region both in maritime strategic competition or conflict which might be played out in the Bay of Bengal the Malacca and Singapore Straits and the South China Sea The sea lines of communication SLOCs through Southeast Asian waters constitute vital choke points between the Indian and Pacific Oceans carrying essential energy supplies for China and other Northeast Asian countries Any strategic competition between China and India has implications for other major maritime players in the Pacific and Indian Oceans especially Australia the Republic of Korea and Japan as well as the US This book identifies possible cooperative and confidence building measures that may contribute to enhanced relations between these two major powers and dampen down the risks associated with their strategic competition Report to Congress of the U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission, 2010 Borderlands of Southeast Asia: Geopolitics, Terrorism, and Globalization, The Borderlands of Southeast Asia James Clad, Sean M. McDonald, Bruce Vaughn, 2011 As an academic field in its own right the topic of border studies is experiencing a revival in university geography courses as well as in wider political commentary Until recently border studies in contemporary Southeast Asia appeared as an afterthought at best to the politics of interstate rivalry and national consolidation The maps set out all agreed postcolonial lines Meanwhile the physical demarcation of these boundaries lagged Large slices of territory on land and at sea eluded definition or delineation That comforting ambiguity has disappeared Both evolving technologies and price levels enable rapid resource extraction in places and in volumes once scarcely imaginable The beginning of the 21st century's second decade is witnessing an intensifying diplomacy both state to state and commercial over offshore petroleum. In particular the South China Sea has moved from being a rather arcane area of conflict studies to the status of a bellwether issue. Along with other contested areas in the western Pacific and south Asia the problem increasingly defines China's regional relationships in Asia and with powers outside the region especially the United States. Yet intraregional territorial differences also hobble multilateral diplomacy to counter Chinese claims and daily management of borders remains burdened by a lot of retrospective baggage. The contributors to this book emphasize this mix of heritage and history as the primary leitmotif for contemporary border rivalries and dynamics. Whether the region's 11 states want it or not their bordered identity is falling into ever sharper definition if only because of pressure from extraregional states. This book aims to provide new ways of looking at the reality and illusion of bordered Southeast Asia.

Southeast Asians and the Asia-Europe Meeting (ASEM) Evi Fitriani, 2016-05-13 The inauguration of the Asia Europe Meeting ASEM in Bangkok in 1996 was celebrated with enthusiasm and hopes in the two regions because this forum represented a breakthrough in Asia Europe relations. The region to region pattern of the relations becomes the study framework that enables the explorations of central themes which include the Asian regional identity, ASEAN collective diplomatic prominence and the informality of the ASEM institution. In exploring those central themes this book applies constructivist, realist and neo liberal institutional theories consecutively. The difference between Asian and European cooperative culture as well as the longevity of an international institution adds to the picture. This book contributes not only to the study of Asia Europe relations but also to the understanding of regionalism in Asia.
