The Sounds of Social Space Paul Kendall, 2019-01-31 A giant statue of a six pipe musical instrument stands in the heart of Kaili city Yet despite its prominent placement intended to convey the essence of the city residents hold extremely low opinions of music making in Kaili particularly when compared to the authentic music found in surrounding ethnic minority villages In this engaging accessible work author Paul Kendall investigates this conundrum and comes to terms with conflicting representations of a small southwestern Chinese city branded the homeland of one hundred festivals Drawing on Henri Lefebvre's triad of social space the book explores the relationship between Kaili's branding built environment and everyday life how China's post Mao built environment hinders and hides everyday music making even in a tourist destination for ethnic music how residents themselves deny or downplay the existence of ethnic music in the city despite the government's efforts to promote it how amateur musicians have constructed generational hierarchies of musical practice within a shifting cityscape Kendall argues that increased focus on the small city helps counter a tendency to conceive China as either timeless village or futuristic metropolis and enables a more comprehensive understanding of the urban experience both in China and beyond He shows that many Kaili inhabitants recognize not only a rural urban divide long a dominant geographical notion of China but also a more complex conceptualization of village small city and big city By interweaving theories of authenticity with an innovative interpretation of space Kendall shows how the category of fake minority emerged from this small city as a surprisingly positive form of self identification suggesting that there are ways of not being ethnic even in often exoticized southwest China The Sounds of Social Space makes a distinctive contribution across a range of disciplinary interests including Chinese studies urban studies anthropology and ethnomusicology

Geo-Narratives of a Filial Son Elizabeth Kindall, 2020-05-11 Huang Xiangjian a mid seventeenth century member of the Suzhou local elite journeyed on foot to southwest China and recorded its sublime scenery in site specific paintings Elizabeth Kindall's innovative analysis of the visual experiences and social functions Huang conveyed through his oeuvre reveals an unrecognized tradition of site paintings here labeled geo narratives that recount specific journeys and create meaning in the paintings Kindall shows how Huang created these geo narratives by drawing upon the Suzhou place painting tradition as well as the encoded experiences of southwestern sites discussed in historical gazetteers and personal travel records and the geography of the sites themselves Ultimately these works were intended to create personas and fulfill specific social purposes among the educated class during the Ming Qing transition Some of Huang's paintings of the southwest together with his travel records became part of a campaign to attain the socially generated title of Filial Son whereas others served private functions This definitive study elucidates the context for Huang Xiangjian's painting and identifies geo narrative as a distinct landscape painting tradition lauded for its naturalistic immediacy experiential topography and dramatic narratives of moral persuasion class identification and biographical commemoration

Displacing Desire Beth E. Notar, 2006-10-31 Why do millions of people from around the world flock to Dali a small borderland town in the Himalayan foothills of southwest China Lonely planeters American European and Israeli backpackers named for the guidebook they carry trek halfway across the globe to get off the beaten track yet converge here to drink coffee eat banana pancakes and share music from home Coastal Chinese who are prospering in the phenomenal economic growth of China's reform era travel thousands of miles to sing songs and dress up as their favorite characters from a revolutionary era movie musical Overseas Chinese from Southeast Asia as well as a new generation of mainland youth follow in the footsteps of heroes and villains from Hong Kong martial arts novels seeking an experience of a Buddhist wild wild West at a martial arts theme park dubbed Hollywood East or Daliwood Inspired by representations in popular culture that engender fantasies of the exotic these tourists Western and Chinese journey to Dali Yunnan in search of an imagined place where they can indulge their craving for authenticity display their status in the present and act out their nostalgia for the past Based on more than a decade of ethnographic research Beth Notar explores struggles over place as people in Dali attempt to represent their historical identity and define their future Displacing Desire takes representation into the realm of practice to consider the ways in which those who are represented must contend with their image in popular culture and the material after effects of representations even decades after their original production It contributes to an exploration of travel as performance of nostalgia fantasy and status More specifically it contributes to an understanding of the growth of consumer culture in China examining what China's modernization process and market economy mean for different social actors in their struggles over power and place
