Studies In The Transformation Of U.S. Agriculture A. Eugene Havens, Gregory Hooks, Patrick H Mooney, Max Pfeffer, 2019-09-05 In recent years the consensual view of rural society has been challenged by theorists identifying the conflict exploitation and power relations in rural society Beyond this theoretical challenge empirical studies of the sociology of agriculture have provided a fresh understanding of the dynamics of U S agriculture This book contributes to the growing literature by providing a historical perspective The contributors explore historical developments in U S agriculture within the context of the larger political economy The book opens with a review of the similarities and differences between the critical rural sociology of today with that of the 1930s and moves on to a study of the accumulation process in U S agriculture Other issues covered include the erosion of the southern class structure during and after the 1930s the landed aristocracy's reassertion in the post bellum south changes in the class structure and locus of agriculture in the midwest and historical developments in the labor process and in capitalist agriculture in California The concluding chapter provides a framework for studying both the origins and the consequences of state agriculture policies

Science and Medicine in the Old South Ronald Numbers, Todd L. Savitt, 1999-03-01 With a few notable exceptions historians have tended to ignore the role that science and medicine played in the antebellum South The fourteen essays in Science and Medicine in the Old South help to redress that neglect by considering scientific and medical developments in the early nineteenth century South and by showing the ways in which the South's scientific and medical activities differed from those of other regions The book is divided into two sections The essays in the first section examine the broad background of science in the South between 1830 and 1860 the second section addresses medicine specifically The essays frequently counterpoint each other In the first section Ronald Numbers and Janet Numbers argue that the South's failure to keep pace with the North in scientific areas resulted from demographic factors William Scarborough asserts that slavery produced a social structure that encouraged agricultural and political careers rather than scientific and industrial ones Charles Dew offers a strong indictment of slavery suggesting that the conservative influence of the institution severely discouraged the adoption of modern technologies Other essays examine institutions of higher learning in the South southern scientific societies and the relationship between science and theology The section on medicine in the Old South also examines the ways in which the medical needs and practices of the Old South were both similar to and distinct from those of other regions K David Patterson argues that slavery in effect imported African diseases into the Southeast and created a modified West African disease environment James H Cassedy points out that land management policies determined by slavery land clearing soil exhaustion also helped create a distinctive disease environment Other contributors discuss southern public health problems domestic medicine slave folk beliefs and the special medical needs of blacks Science and Medicine in the Old South is a long overdue examination of these segments of the southern cultural milieu These essays will do much to clarify misconceptions about the time and the region moreover they suggest directions for future research
