Soup Has Many Eyes From Shtetl To Chicago One Family's Journey Through History:

The Soup Has Many Eyes Joann Rose Leonard, 2000 Our lives are made rich by those who came before us Like ingredients in a long simmering soup they flavor who we are and what we do In this beautiful haunting and larger than life memoir one woman shares with us the humor heartbreak and triumph of her Jewish ancestry to comfort and strengthen us all whatever our faith At home in her Pennsylvania kitchen Joann Leonard makes soup In her grandfather's pot she improvises using her great grandmother's unwritten recipe As she does amid the fragrant steam rising from the pot comes a stream of memories half told tales and departed ancestors asking that their stories be told And what stories they are of the six strong Axelrood brothers and their families terrorized by Cossacks in their Eastern European village of a man hiding twenty eight days under a barn floor to avoid being murdered of a tiny girl left with others for safety in the flight from savagery and lost for twelve long years and of new lives made from old in America the Golden Land As Joann Leonard adds each story to her pot she creates a rich and universal soup to nourish us all the story of a woman putting together the fragmented pieces of her own life and recognizing the power of her own Jewish heritage What she discovers within her cookpot are the extraordinary endurance remarkable bravery and lusty humor of her forebears and the joy of an undying legacy of faith that is the greatest gift she has been given a gift she has been entrusted to pass along to her two adult sons These pages invite us all to share in this life giving food In a nation where most people's roots lie in faraway lands The Soup Has Many Eyes is a rich poetic deeply satisfying testament to the importance of family bonds spiritual insight and most of all the miracle that happens when we invite the past into our lives

Anna's Shtetl Lawrence A. Coben, 2011-01-25 A rare view of a childhood in a European ghetto Anna Spector was born in 1905 in Korsun a Ukrainian town on the Ros River eighty miles south of Kiev Held by Poland until 1768 and annexed by the Tsar in 1793 Korsun and its fluid ethnic population were characteristic of the Pale of Settlement in Eastern Europe comprised of Ukrainians Cossacks Jews and other groups living uneasily together in relationships punctuated by violence Anna's father left Korsun in 1912 to immigrate to America and Anna left in 1919 having lived through the Great War the Bolshevik Revolution and part of the ensuing civil war as well as several episodes of more or less organized pogroms deadly anti Jewish riots begun by various invading military detachments during the Russian Civil War and joined by some of Korsun's peasants In the early 1990s Anna met Lawrence A Coben a medical doctor seeking information about the shtetls to recapture a sense of his own heritage Anna had near perfect recall of her daily life as a girl and young woman in the last days in one of those historic but doomed communities Her rare account the product of some 300 interviews is valuable because most personal memoirs of ghetto life are written by men Also very often Christian neighbors appear in ghetto accounts as a stolid peasant mass assembled on market days as destructive mobs or as an arrogant and distant collection of government officials and nobility Anna's story is exceptionally rich in a sense of the Korsun Christians as friends neighbors and individuals Although the Jewish communities in Eastern Europe are now virtually gone less than 100 years ago they counted a population of millions The firsthand records we have from that lost world are therefore important and this view from the underrecorded lives of women and the young is particularly welcome
