Abstract

The bibliography presented here is a list of contemporary research publications that provide the details of books, research articles, as well as other research outputs that were published between 1994 and 2020. The main aim of this bibliography is to provide scholars interested in researching South African Englishes with sources of major works published internationally as well as in core journals from South Africa. Despite the problems concerning representativeness of research bibliographies in general, we hope that this list of references will complement existing sources in this field. We also hope that that this bibliography will serve as a useful guide for those researchers and graduate students interested in contemporary issues in the study of South African Englishes.

1 | INTRODUCTION

This research bibliography lists some of the major research articles, books, and other research outputs that were published between 1994 and 2020. These dates were selected because of the significance of the post-apartheid era in South Africa's modern history, in particular since South African society at large has been characterized as being a more inclusive, democratic and open society, marking an official end to apartheid rule in the country. This current bibliography is also timely, in that a number of research publications on English in South Africa, as well as South African Englishes, have evidently become increasingly connected with the international frontline of research in world Englishes studies more generally. This is perhaps best evidenced in studies that connect with current theorizing on the role of globalization in the spread and use of English, as well as the complex nature of the use of English in multilingual contexts.

The introduction to this bibliography comes with a necessary caveat. All the publications presented here set out to provide a listing of major publications, with particular reference to world Englishes in the context of South Africa. As with any survey of an academic field of study, this bibliography does not (and in fact, cannot) claim complete comprehensiveness, which would indeed be impossible to achieve considering the diverse nature of English studies and sociolinguistics research (among other fields) in South Africa today. Nevertheless, we believe that this bibliography offers a broad range of topic areas, including coverage of world Englishes with such topics as 'applied language studies',
