Bledsoe, Phillip Sollins, 1999-10-28 Standardized methods and measurements are crucial for ecological research particularly in long term ecological studies where the projects are by nature collaborative and where it can be difficult to distinguish signs of environmental change from the effects of differing methodologies This second volume in the Long Term Ecological Research LTER Network Series addresses these issues directly by providing a comprehensive standardized set of protocols for measuring soil properties The goal of the volume is to facilitate cross site synthesis and evaluation of ecosystem processes Chapters cover methods for studying physical and chemical properties of soils soil biological properties and soil organisms and they include work from many leaders in the field The book is the first broadly based compendium of standardized soil measurement methods and will be an invaluable resource for ecologists agronomists and soil scientists Standard Soil

Methods for Long-term Ecological Research G. Philip Robertson, 1999 The Challenges of Long Term Ecological Research: A Historical Analysis Robert B. Waide, Sharon E. interested in ecological and environmental sciences as well as researchers across many disciplines who are involved in long term ecological research Field Measurements for Forest Carbon Monitoring Coeli M Hoover, 2008-10-20 In the summer of 2003 a workshop was held in Portsmouth NH to discuss land measurement techniques for the North American Carbon Program Over 40 sci tists representing government agencies academia and nonprofit research organi tions located in Canada the US and Mexico participated During the course of the workshop a number of topics were discussed with an emphasis on the following The need for an intermediate tier of carbon measurements This level of study would be more extensive than state level inventories of the US Forest Service Forest Inventory and Analysis Program but less detailed than intensive ecos

tem studies sites such as those in Long Term Ecological Research network This tier would ideally provide a basis to link and scale remote sensing measurements and inventory data and supply data required to parameterize existing models see Wofsy and Harriss 2002 Denning et al 2005 The design criteria that such a network of sites should meet The network and sampling design should be standardized but flexible enough to be applied across North America The design also needs to be efficient enough to be implemented without the need for large field crews yet robust enough to provide useful information Finally the spatial scale must permit easy linkage to remotely sensed data The key variables that should be measured at each site and the frequency of measurement

Principles and Standards for Measuring Primary Production Timothy J. Fahey, Alan K. Knapp, 2007-05-14 Principles and Standards for Measuring Net Primary Production in Long Term Ecological Studies is the first book to establish a standardized method for measuring net primary productivity NPP in ecological research Primary productivity is the rate at which energy is stored in the organic matter of plants per unit area of the earth's surface As the beginning stage of the carbon cycle our ability to accurately measure NPP is essential to any ecological analysis as well as agronomy forestry fisheries limnology and oceanography In fact NPP measurements are fundamental to ecosystem studies at thousands of sites around the world All 26 LTER sites will be expected to collect and report data using these new standards but the standards should reach well beyond LTER sites Identified standards for NPP measurements will allow researchers from diverse biomes to authoritatively compare measurements among their sites Comparable measurements will build a foundation for a broad scale understanding of the environmental biological and nutrition controls on NPP The book includes chapters for each of the critical biome types including special techniques that work best in each environment For example there are chapters that discuss grassland ecosystems urban ecosystems marine pelagic ecosystems forest ecosystems and salt marsh ecosystems among others
