She shows how Tepoztecan politics borrows discourses from the Mexican state she then tells how this process shaped local politics in the midst of the contested 1988 national presidential election when local actors elaborated a discourse of democracy as a technique for disciplining gossip and in 1991 when Tepoztecan began to draw on the support of international environmental NGOs Throughout her analysis Martin explores how Tepoztecan politics unfolds in the climate of mistrust first nurtured by the role of the state in local politics and later by the demands of working with U S and Western European environmentalists Martin shows that the politics of loose connections is above all else a style of political participation that has proved adaptive in the contemporary political landscape and that understandings of politics have been dogged by a conception of connections that may well be obsolete in the contemporary world Her study is a balanced re evaluation of Tepoztlán that reveals how politics succeeds through loose connections a strategy that may be instructive for others seeking to survive in either local or global coalitions Tepoztlán, a Mexican Village Yozan Iwasaki,1930 The

Social Anthropology Kevin Jack Riley,Clifford Wilcox,2017-07-28 Robert Redfield is remembered today primarily as an anthropologist but during his lifetime Redfield s cross disciplinary activity reflected a strong interest in infusing anthropological practice with sociological theory Like a handful of other anthropologists including A R Radcliffe Brown and

Bronislaw Malinowski who shared his interests during the 1920s through 1930s his works came to define a new subfield known as social anthropology Redfield was distinct in being one of the first Americans to devote himself seriously to social anthropology a field dominated initially by British scholars He spent his career at the University of Chicago and his anthropology bore the distinct mark of sociology as developed and practiced at that institution Indeed Redfield played a major role in defining what has been called the second Chicago school of sociology This volume brings together Redfield's most important contributions to social anthropology During the 1920s sociology and anthropology constituted a single department at the University of Chicago Although most students concentrated on sociology or anthropology Redfield chose to pursue both fields with equal intensity He adopted as his central interest the leading problematic of the 1920s the study of social change Chicago School sociologists approached social change by examining zones of rapid transition within the city for example areas populated by recently arrived immigrants with the goal of elucidating general principles or dynamics of social transition Redfield's work can be seen as falling into three distinct theoretical categories 1 the study of social change or modernization 2 peasant studies and 3 the comparative study of civilizations Drawing from articles book excerpts and unpublished papers and letters this work presents Redfield's central contributions in each of these areas Seen as a whole this volume traces Redfield's seminal contributions to the early development of mo
