Houston, 2023-05-01 This book is a study of the representation of the Persian empire in English drama across the early modern period from the 1530s to the 1690s The wide focus of this book encompassing thirteen dramatic entertainments both canonical and little known allow it to trace the changes and developments in the dramatic use of Persia and its people across one and a half centuries It explores what Persia signified to English playwrights and audiences in this period the ideas and associations conjured up by mention of Persia and where information about Persia came from It also considers how ideas about Persia changed with the development of global travel and trade as English people came into people with Persians for the first time In addressing these issues this book provides an examination not only of the representation of Persia in dramatic material but of the broader relationship between travel politics and the theatre in early modern England The

The Fire, the Star and the Cross Aptin Khanbaghi,2006-02-22 Although today the region is mostly identified with Islam it has been home to many other great cultures and the civilization of the Islamic world is itself indebted to the various peoples that the Arabs subdued in the 7th and 8th centuries Far from fading away after the Arab conquest the inhabitants of the Iranian plateau and of Mesopotamia were central players in the lives of their regions. However, the magnitude of their contribution to the emergence of the early Islamic world has hitherto been neglected. In this fascinating and groundbreaking study, Khanbaghi offers a comprehensive discussion of those groups that resisted assimilation to the new Islamic order yet continued to participate actively in the socio-political life of their homeland. He concentrates on Iran, which due to its complex religious history offers unique opportunities for the study of non-Muslim communities, specifically of Zoroastrians, Jews, and Christians. Aptin Khanbaghi has written an important and fascinating book which aims to present a thorough evaluation of the historical contributions made by religious minorities, Zoroastrians, Jews, and Christians to the societal and cultural physiognomy of the lands of Iran in pre-modern and early modern times. His general perspective and his broad treatment of the topic are quite new, while his use of sources and of the secondary literature is genuinely impressive. The Fire, the Star, and the Cross makes a very significant and original contribution to our knowledge and understanding of Iranian history and civilization during an era when the foundations were laid for the emerging modern Iranian state. BERT G FRAGNER, Director of the Institute of Iranian Studies, Austrian Academy of Sciences, Vienna.

Women and Islam in Early Modern English Literature Bernadette Andrea, 2008-01-17. In this innovative study, Bernadette Andrea focuses on the contributions of women and their writings in the early modern cultural encounters between England and the Islamic world. She examines previously neglected material, such as the diplomatic correspondence between Queen Elizabeth I and the Ottoman Queen Mother Safiye at the end of the sixteenth century, and resituates canonical accounts, including Lady Mary Wortley Montagu's travelogue of the Ottoman empire at the beginning of the eighteenth century. Her study advances our understanding of how women negotiated conflicting discourses of gender, orientalism, and imperialism at a time when the Ottoman empire was hugely powerful and England was still a marginal nation with limited global influence. This book is a significant contribution to critical and theoretical debates in literary and cultural postcolonial, women's, and Middle Eastern studies.
