Playing with Form Alexander Alland, 1983 The development of the child's ability to draw is an inherently fascinating and complex subject Many theories have been proposed to explain this development but until now no one has undertaken a cross cultural controlled study of children in the act of drawing Playing with Form is the first empirical study of children drawing in diverse cultures Alexander Alland Jr spent eight months observing and filming children six cultures Japan Bali Taiwan Ponape France and the U S as they drew Attempting to determine the accuracy of current generalizations about the development of drawing skills as well as to understand the step by step process of drawing Alland amassed 240 drawings 100 of which are reproduced here by children ranging from two to eight years old The author uses this wealth of primary material to dispute much current thinking about children's drawing particular theories about specific universal stages of development While he does suggest some general rules which underlie the process of drawing Alland argues that cultural differences reflect rules which are specific to the culture in which children play with form An invaluable first step toward understanding the exact role culture plays in the development of style in children s drawing Playing with Form will be of fundamental interest to anthropologists developmental psychologists art historians and elementary school teachers back cover LIFE ,1967-02-10 LIFE Magazine is the treasured photographic magazine that chronicled the 20th Century It now lives on at LIFE com the largest most amazing collection of professional photography on the internet Users can browse search and view photos of today s people and events They have free access to share print and post images for personal use
