Abstract

Fieldwork placement is essential for social work education. It serves to connect theory and practice, enabling the development of student professional identity. However, unpaid placements can negatively impact students, particularly students who are carers, women, and live rurally. This reflective case study describes how an undergraduate social work course in Australia adapted its curriculum and assessments to support students during their placements. The changes were made in response to placement stressors, while utilising best-practice principles for online pedagogy. These adaptations allowed students to engage with the course at their own pace, and with accessible and flexible course materials. Assessments were directly aligned with placement experiences and due dates and late penalties were removed to promote autonomy and respect student discretion. This case study presents reflections from the teaching team, alongside student feedback, to explore strategies for supporting social work students during placements. Although unpaid placements are likely to continue due to accreditation standards and requirements in many countries, educators can be active in supporting student wellbeing during this time.

James Davies, Dimitrina Spencer

Stress And Response In Fieldwork:

Stress and Response in Fieldwork Frances Henry, Satish Saberwal, 1969 Doing Fieldwork Rosalie Wax, 1985
Recounting her own field experiences in Japanese American relocation centers during World War II and later in American Indian communities Rosalie H Wax offers advice to help the beginning field worker anticipate and confront the exigencies and accidents of fieldwork with good nature fortitude and common sense Doing Fieldwork is a useful book in many respects as a guide to participant observation and ethnographic fieldwork as an analysis of the theoretical presuppositions and history of fieldwork as a discussion of contemporary issues in social science research and simply as an entertaining and dramatic story

The SAGE Handbook of Fieldwork Dick Hobbs, Richard Wright, 2006-01-26 Fieldwork is widely practiced but little written about yet accounts of the exotic mundane complex and often dangerous are central to not only sociology and anthropology but also geography social psychology and criminology This handbook presents the first major overview of this method in all its variety introducing the reader to the strengths weaknesses and real world applications of fieldwork techniques

Emotions in the Field James Davies, Dimitrina Spencer, 2010-03-08 This book investigates how anthropologists can make use of the emotions fieldwork generates within them to deepen their understanding of the communities they study

A Different Drummer Bruce Alden Cox, 1987-10-15 This volume is a collective production by Carleton University's anthropology caucus for use in introductory courses in cultural anthropology It is an alternative to available textbooks which the caucus feels are mainly American in orientation and not respectful of third and fourth world peoples

Children and Anthropological Research Barbara Butler, Diane Michalski Turner, 2013-11-11 The first time that we the editors of this volume met a chance remark by one of us newly returned from fieldwork in Fiji quickly led to an animated discussion of our experiences doing anthropological research with children Following that occasion we began to seek each other out in order to continue such conversations because we had found no other opportunity to discuss these significant events We knew our experiences were rich sources of cross cultural data and stimuli to rethinking anthropological theory and methods A cursory review of the literature on fieldwork revealed to our surprise that fieldworker's experiences with children were rarely and only briefly mentioned Hostetler and Huntington 1970 are an early exception In order to learn more about research that included the ethnographers children we organized a conference on the topic at Michigan State University on May 1 1982 This volume includes papers from that conference as well as insights and ideas from the formal and informal discussions among the conference participants and audience This volume like the conference which preceded it is intended to be the effects of accompanying children on anthropological an exploration of field research and on the effects of fieldwork on the children themselves Additionally we see this book as part of an anthropological inquiry into research as a cultural process by which is meant the effects of the researchers cultural identity class gender age ethnicity and other characteristics on fieldwork

Writing Feminist Autoethnography Elizabeth Mackinlay, 2022-01-31 Writing Feminist

Autoethnography explores the personal is political relationship between autoethnography and feminist theory and practice Each chapter introduces the lives and works of a range of feminist thinkers and writers and considers the ways in which their thinking and writing might come to be in relation with our own personal is political thinking and writing work as feminist autoethnographers The book begins with an acknowledgement of the author s positionality as a white settler colonial woman in relation with Yanyuwa Garrwa Mara and Kudanji Aboriginal women This positionality has continued to resonate deeply with the responses and sensibilities the author holds as a feminist autoethnographer to move beyond coloniality She explores the writing of Virginia Woolf Simone Weil Simone de Beauvoir Hélène Cixous Kathleen Stewart bell hooks and Ruth Behar with critical affect to embrace embody and engage with feminist thinking wondering and feeling The book creatively and performatively explores what it means to live a feminist life as an autoethnographer This book will define and conceptualize feminist autoethnography for all qualitative researchers especially those interested in critical autoethnography and scholars in gender studies and communication

Ethnography Paul Atkinson, 2007-06-26 Now in its third edition this leading introduction to ethnography has been thoroughly updated and substantially rewritten It offers a systematic introduction to ethnographic principles and practice New material covers the use of visual and virtual research methods hypermedia software and the issue of ethical regulation There is also a new prologue and epilogue The authors argue that ethnography is best understood as a reflexive process What this means is that we must recognize that social research is part of the world that it studies From an outline of the principle of reflexivity the authors go on to discuss and exemplify main features of ethnographic work including the selection and sampling of cases the problems of access observation and interviewing recording and filing data the process of data analysis and writing research reports Throughout the discussion draws on a wide range of illustrative material from classic and more recent studies within a global context The new edition of this popular textbook will be an indispensable resource for students and researchers utilizing social research methods in the social sciences and cultural studies

Centralizing Fieldwork Jeremy MacClancy, Agustín Fuentes, 2010-12-01 Fieldwork is a central method of research throughout anthropology a much valued much vaunted mode of generating information But its nature and process have been seriously understudied in biological anthropology and primatology This book is the first ever comparative investigation across primatology biological anthropology and social anthropology to look critically at this key research practice It is also an innovative way to further the comparative project within a broadly conceived anthropology because it does not focus on common theory but on a common method The questions asked by contributors are what in the pursuit of fieldwork is common to all three disciplines what is unique to each how much is contingent how much necessary Can we generate well grounded cross disciplinary generalizations about this mutual research method and are there any telling differences Co edited by a social anthropologist and a primatologist the book includes a list of distinguished and well established contributors from primatology and biological anthropology
