Westwick, 2012-06-04 Like citrus oil movies radio and television aerospace helped create Southern California and embody its values Blue Sky Metropolis launches an entirely fresh consideration of an iconic industry that answered the immemorial hunger of the human race for flight and the future Kevin Starr University of Southern California Blue Sky Metropolis

presents an intriguing survey of a unique time in Southern California history when cheap land and benign weather lured massive aerospace enterprises to the region eventually serving as home to nearly half of the nation's defense and space fabricators. Before there was a Silicon Valley, high-tech dreamers were on the loose in the Southland creating inventions as diverse as the Voyager planetary spacecraft and the Stealth bomber. These highly readable essays help us understand how it happened how Southern California shaped aerospace and vice versa. Charles Elachi, Director, Jet Propulsion Laboratory; Peter Westwick has assembled a rich collection of essays that tell a wonderful story about the importance of the aerospace industry to Southern California and the importance of Southern California to the aerospace industry. There's technology, sociology, economics, geography, anthropology, and much more woven through the chapters. It's an ambitious project but it succeeds in being interesting, informative, and entertaining. Michael Rich, President and CEO, The RAND Corporation

Holding Up More Than Half the Sky Xiaolan Bao, 2024-04-22 In 1982, 20,000 Chinese American garment workers, most of them women, went on strike in New York City. Every Chinese garment industry employer in the city soon signed a union contract. The successful action reflected the ways women's changing positions within their families and within the workplace galvanized them to stand up for themselves. Xiaolan Bao's now classic study penetrates to the heart of Chinese American society to explain how this militancy and organized protest, seemingly so at odds with traditional Chinese female behavior, came about. Drawing on more than one hundred interviews, Bao blends the poignant personal stories of Chinese immigrant workers with the interwoven history of the garment industry and the city's Chinese community. Bao shows how the high rate of married women employed outside the home profoundly transformed family culture and with it the image and empowerment of Chinese American women. At the same time, she offers a complex and subtle discussion of the interplay of ethnic and class factors within New York's garment industry. Passionately told and prodigiously documented, Holding Up More Than Half the Sky examines the journey of a community's women through an era of change in the home, on the shop floor, and walking the picket line.

In this book, ng S H ng depicts the relevant events in chronological order from the first air battles, such as the one at Dragon's Jaw Bridge, April 1965, to the Linebacker II Campaign, or as it was known by the North Vietnamese, the i n Bi n Ph in the Air Campaign, December 1972. Dong then writes about the signing of the Paris Peace Accords, January 1973, and the VNPAF's attacks on T n S n Nh t Airfield, April 1975. The air war in Vietnam was the first modern conflict in which the two opposing sides used jet combat aircraft equipped with air-to-air missiles. In addition to his analysis of the strategic calculations, especially by the North Vietnamese, and the operations carried out, the author also details the technical characteristics of the weaponry used, as well as the changes in tactics applied in each phase of the war In doing so Dong provides the most unique perspective of this aspect of the conflict available in the English language The Proper Edge of the Sky Edward A.
