Strategic Options For Urban Infrastructure Management

Christine Kessides

Strategic Options For Urban Infrastructure Management:

Strategic Options for Urban Infrastructure Management William F. Fox, 1994-01-01 Experience of the past decade confirms that the solution to infrastructure problems is not merely to expand capacity by making new investments. Much more systematic changes must be undertaken if service delivery is to attain the standards necessary to improve quality of life and allow economic output to expand more rapidly. This paper identifies several broad areas for reform and recommends a series of actions to attain effective service delivery. Institutional Options for the Provision of Infrastructure Christine Kessides, 1993-01-01 This paper explains why tough public sector reform and a sound macroeconomy are essential to sustained growth. It provides a strategy to help countries evaluate how well their governments' policies work. Decisionmakers will learn ways to build an evaluations program that can make governments more accountable and improve their performance. Some options could include making central banks independent, eliminating earmarked funds, and balancing the national budget. The author suggests which government offices should oversee and develop evaluation policies to get the best results and explains why evaluation results must be linked with all budget decisions. He describes the political and economic environment that allows the evaluation process to develop freely. Also discussed is the role that the World Bank and other institutions should play in supporting evaluation programs. The study examines how sound evaluation can lead to more consistent international policies and better international governance.

Participation and Partnership in Urban Infrastructure Management Peter Schübeler, 1996-01-01 This paper describes and illustrates a range of participatory strategies to assist urban managers in expanding the role and effectiveness of user participation in the provision and operation and maintenance of infrastructure. To demonstrate how participation has been effectively employed in various circumstances, numerous case studies are cited. Finally, measures and steps are outlined that could be instrumental in realizing participatory strategies. Adapt du résumé de l'auteur Urban Management Programme, 1997-2001 Urban Management Program, United Nations Human Settlements Programme, 2002 Sharing the City John Abbott, 2013-11-05

While the rate of urbanisation in the developing world has increased dramatically over the past 20 years, governments' capacity to support urban growth has in many cases failed to keep up with this trend. Non-governmental organisations working in the field have long advocated community management of the urban environment as the best solution to this problem, and there is now a growing consensus that the answer does indeed lie with local communities. Yet there is still little understanding of what constitutes meaningful and effective community participation or how it may be achieved in such a complex operating environment. Sharing the City gives a comprehensive account of urban community participation both in theory and practice. It first presents a wide-ranging analysis of the issues and develops a participatory framework for urban management. Using case studies and existing examples from around the world and drawing on lessons learned from previous experience it then develops the theory into a practical working model Effective participatory urban management calls for a fundamental rethink on the part of all the actors involved from local authorities and development agencies through local and international NGOs to the community based organisations and the communities themselves In redefining their roles and relationships Sharing the City presents a new and radically different yet viable and effective approach to the concept of urban management Public Management: Expanding the scope of public management Stephen P. Osborne,2002 Legal Impediments to Effective Rural Land Relations in Eastern Europe and Central Asia Roy L. Prosterman,Timothy M. Hanstad,1999-01-01 Excessive concentration of land ownership as is feared by many transition governments has not been a feature of land markets where they have been allowed to function relatively freely and where land has been allocated in kind to households and individuals The World Bank has long been active in the Europe and Central Asia region in monitoring and evaluating land reform developments and supporting the development of land markets Bank efforts to date have made a significant impact in our client countries and studies produced by the Bank have been used as impartial references on this subject by both international organizations and the countries themselves This report was developed as a result of these efforts It focuses on The principal issues faced by the transition economies of Eastern Europe and the Former Soviet Union The potential approaches for resolving specific problem issues Policy Programme Options for Urban Poverty Reduction Franz Vanderschueren,Emiel A. Wegelin,K. Wekwete,1996-01-01 This paper reviews the specific actions which municipalities and city governments may take in contributing to urban poverty reduction It highlights examples of issues options and constraints which urban government have to address in grappling with poverty and focuses on municipalities and other city level government entities as a critical institutional level on intervention particularly in addressing issues relating to service delivery Adapt du r sum des auteurs Guiding cities Babar Mumtaz,2001
