Peripheral Markers of Immune Response in

Major Psychiatric Disorders: Where Are We Now and Where Do We Want to Be? Błażej Misiak,Dorota

Frydecka,Bartłomiej Stańczykiewicz,Jerzy Samochowiec,2019-04-03 Major psychiatric disorders including schizophrenia bipolar disorder and major depression represent complex phenotypes with imprecise diagnostic boundaries It has been found that these disorders can be characterized by a number of peripheral immune inflammatory alterations including i e elevated levels of pro inflammatory cytokines increased levels of specific and non specific antibodies or abnormal counts of lymphocyte subpopulations Although it has been found that major psychiatric disorders share similar dysregulations of immune inflammatory response recent studies have also clearly demonstrated that some differences can be indicated Interestingly certain immune inflammatory disturbances appear to be state markers since they occur in acute relapse and normalize following pharmacological treatment while the rest represents trait markers that remain stable regardless of treatment It is also important to note that peripheral immune inflammatory markers have been associated with psychopathological manifestation of major psychiatric disorders response to treatment and long term outcomes However it remains unclear what is the origin of peripheral inflammation in psychiatric disorders To date several mechanisms have been proposed including the gut brain axis dysregulation infections in the neurodevelopmental period or immunogenetic factors This eBook summarizes current evidence from studies investigating peripheral inflammation in schizophrenia bipolar disorder major depression and post traumatic stress disorder as well as it provides future directions for the field Kaplan

Underlying Psychiatric and Somatic Disorders Stefan O. Reber, David A. Slattery, 2017-01-13 Chronic or repeated stress particularly psychosocial stress is an acknowledged risk factor for numerous affective and somatic disorders in modern societies Thus there is substantial evidence showing that chronic stress can increase the likelihood of major depressive disorder and anxiety disorders as well as cardiovascular diseases irritable bowel syndrome and pain syndromes to name but a few in vulnerable individuals Although a number of pharmacological agents are available to treat such stress related disorders many patients do not respond to them and those who do often report a number of side effects Therefore a major emphasis in modern basic research is to uncover the underlying aetiology of these disorders and to develop novel efficacious treatment strategies This has led to a resurgence in developing and using appropriate animal models to study a wide variety of stress related disorders Thus the aim of this research topic Using stress based animal models to understand the mechanisms underlying psychiatric and somatic disorders was to bring together novel research articles and comprehensive review articles from prominent stress researchers In addition to describing the insights such models have provided relating to the aetiology of psychiatric and somatic disorders these articles also encompass mechanisms that are believed to underlie stress resilience and stress protection Finally given the current prominence on the role of the brain gut axis in health and disease the research topic covers the emerging evidence showing how the gut particularly the microbiota influences affective behaviour and physiology
