Three decades into the HIV pandemic, the goals remain clear: reduce the number of infections, improve the health outcomes of those who are infected, and eliminate disparities in care. Recognizing their complex role as educators, mentors, and caregivers, Family and HIV/AIDS assembles a wealth of findings from successful prevention and intervention strategies and provides models for translating evidence into effective real-world practice. Chapters spotlight the differing roles of mothers and fathers in prevention efforts, clarify the need for family-community collaborations, and examine core issues of culture, ethnicity, gender, and diagnosis, e.g., minority families, adolescents with psychological disorders. Throughout, risk reduction and health promotion are shown as a viable public health strategy. A reference with considerable utility across the health, mental health, and related disciplines, Family and HIV/AIDS will be a go-to resource for practitioners working with families, researchers studying at-risk populations, administrators seeking to create new or evaluate existing prevention and care programs, and policymakers involved in funding such programs.
