Imdeduya Gunter Senft, 2017-07-12 This volume presents five variants of the Imdeduya myth two versions of the actual myth a short story a song and John Kasaipwalova's English poem Sail the Midnight Sun This poem draws heavily on the Trobriand myth which introduces the protagonists Imdeduya and Yolina and reports on Yolina's intention to marry the girl so famous for her beauty on his long journey to Imdeduya's village and on their tragic love story The texts are compared with each other with a final focus on the clash between orality and scripturality Contrary to Kasaipwalova's fixed poetic text the oral Imdeduya versions reveal the variability characteristic for oral tradition This variability opens up questions about traditional stability and destabilization of oral literature especially questions about the changing role of myth and magic in the Trobriand Islanders society which gets more and more integrated into the by now literal nation of Papua New Guinea

The Trobriand Islanders' Ways of Speaking Gunter Senft, 2010-07-19 Bronislaw Malinowski claimed in his monograph Argonauts of the Western Pacific that to approach the goal of ethnographic field work requires a collection of ethnographic statements characteristic narratives typical utterances items of folk lore and magical formulae as a corpus inscriptionum as documents of native mentality This book finally meets Malinowski's demand Based on more than 40 months of field research the author presents documents and illustrates the Trobriand Islanders own indigenous typology of text categories or genres covering the spectrum from ditties children chant while spinning a top to gossip songs tales and myths The typology is based on Kilivila metalinguistic terms for these genres and considers the relationship they have with registers or varieties which are also metalinguistically distinguished by the native speakers of this language Rooted in the ethnography of speaking paradigm and in the anthropological linguistics linguistic anthropology approach the book highlights the relevance of genres for researching the role of language culture and cognition in social interaction and demonstrates the importance of understanding genres for achieving linguistic and cultural competence In addition to the data presented in the book its readers have the opportunity to access the original audio and video data presented via the internet on a special website which mirrors the structure of the book Thus the reader can check the transcriptions against the original data recordings This makes the volume particularly valuable for teaching purposes in general Austronesian Oceanic documentary and anthropological linguistics and ethnology

Tales from the Trobriand Islands of Papua New Guinea Gunter Senft, 2015-08-05 This volume presents 22 tales from the Trobriand Islands told by children boys between the age of 5 and 9 years and adults The monograph is motivated not only by the anthropological linguistic aim to present a broad and quite unique collection of tales with the thematic approach to illustrate which topics and themes constitute the content of the stories but also by the psycholinguistic and textlinguistic questions of how children acquire linearization and other narrative strategies how they develop them and how they use them to structure these texts in an adult like way The tales are presented in morpheme interlinear transcriptions with first textlinguistic analyses and cultural background information necessary to fully understand them A summarizing comparative analysis of the texts from a psycholinguistic anthropological linguistic and philological point of view discusses the underlying schemata of the stories the means narrators use to structure them their structural complexity and their cultural specificity

The Changing Role of Women in Bengal, 1849-1905 Meredith Borthwick, 2015-12-08 Basing her work on Bengali language sources such as women's journals private papers biographies and autobiographies Meredith Borthwick approaches the lives of women in nineteenth century Bengal from a new standpoint She moves beyond the record of the heated debates held by men of this period over matters such as widow burning child marriage and female education to explore the effects of changes in society on the lives of women and to question assumptions about advances prompted by British rule Focusing on the wives mothers and daughters of the English educated Bengali professional class Dr Borthwick contends that many reforms merely substituted a restrictive British definition of womanhood for traditional Hindu norms The positive gains for women increased physical freedom the acquisition of literacy and limited entry to nondomestic work often brought unforeseen negative consequences such as a reduction in autonomy and power in the household Originally published in 1984 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Weiner,2021-01-07 This is the first book to explore the relationship between Martin Heideggers work and modern anthropology Heidegger attracts much scholarly interest among social scientists but few have explored his ideas in relation to current anthropological debates The disciplines modernist foundations the nature of cultural constructionism and of art even what an anthropology of art must include are all informed and illuminated by Heideggers work The author argues that many contemporary anthropologists in their concern to return subjectivity and voice to their interlocutors neglect to recognize that language and other representational practices conceal the world and human subjectivity as much as reveal it The author also suggests that Heideggers critique of western technology provides the basis for a return to anthropologys sociological foundations Emerging from over ten years of original research and drawing on a rich knowledge of Australian and Melanesian ethnography this book reassesses the underlying framework of modern and particularly visual anthropology Innovative and provocative it will be of interest to all anthropologists philosophers and students of art and culture Colonial Modernities Ambalika Guha,2017-07-20 The subject of medicalisation of childbirth in colonial India has so far been identified with three major themes the attempt to reform or sanitise the site of birthing practices establishing lying in hospitals and replacing traditional birth attendants with trained midwives and qualified female doctors This book part of the series The Social History of Health and Medicine in South Asia looks at the interactions between childbirth and midwifery practices and colonial modernities Taking eastern India as a case study and related research from other areas with hard empirical data from local government bodies municipal corporations and district boards it goes beyond the conventional narrative to show how the late nineteenth century initiatives to reform birthing practices were essentially a modernist response of the western educated colonised middle class to the colonial critique of Indian sociocultural codes It provides a perceptive historical analysis of how institutionalisation of midwifery was shaped by the debates on the women s question nationalism and colonial public health policies all intersecting in the interwar years The study traces the beginning of medicalisation of childbirth the professionalisation of obstetrics the agency of male doctors inclusion of midwifery as an academic subject in medical colleges and consequences of maternal care and infant welfare This book will greatly interest scholars and researchers in history social medicine public policy gender studies and South Asian studies Songs of the Empty Place James F.
