Landscape in Middle English Romance Andrew M. Richmond, 2021-08-05 Our current ecological crises compel us not only to understand how contemporary media shapes our conceptions of human relationships with the environment but also to examine the historical genealogies of such perspectives Written during the onset of the Little Ice Age in Britain Middle English romances provide a fascinating window into the worldviews of popular vernacular literature and its audiences at the close of the Middle Ages Andrew M Richmond shows how literary conventions of romances shaped and were in turn influenced by contemporary perspectives on the natural world These popular texts also reveal widespread concern regarding the damaging effects of human actions and climate change The natural world was a constant presence in the writing thoughts and lives of the audiences and authors of medieval English romance and these close readings reveal that our environmental concerns go back further in our history and culture than we think

Chaucer and his English Contemporaries Tony Davenport, 1998-07-31 Modern ways of presenting Chaucer have often made his work seem normal so that The Canterbury Tales and its much studied General Prologue are seen as archetypes of narrative and prologue Tony Davenport argues that study of Chaucer's major work alongside contemporary English poems reveals the odd and extreme aspects of Chaucer's writing as well as the daring and experimental qualities in his work. The focus of the book is on strategies of narrative and discourse but also includes discussion of other much studied Middle English poems.

Romance and Its Contexts in Fifteenth-century England Raluca L. Radulescu, 2013 Although the anonymous pious Middle English romances and Sir Thomas Malory's Morte Darthur have rarely been studied in relation to each other they in fact share at least two thematic concerns: vocabularies of suffering and genealogical concerns as this book demonstrates. By examining a broad cultural and political framework stretching from Richard II's deposition to the end of the Wars of the Roses through the prism of piety, politics and penitence, the author draws attention to the specific circumstances in which Sir Isumbras, Sir Gowther, Robert of Cisely, Henry Lovelich's History of the Holy Grail and Malory's Morte were read in fifteenth century England. In the case of the pious romances this implies a study of their reception long after their original composition or translation centuries earlier. In Lovelich's case an examination of metropolitan culture leads to an opening of the discussion to French romance models as well as English chronicle writing.

The English Romance in Time Helen Cooper, 2004-06-17 The English Romance in Time is a study of English romance across the Middle Ages and the Renaissance. It explores romance motifs: quests and fairy mistresses, passionate heroines and rudderless boats and missing heirs from the first emergence of the genre in French and Anglo-Norman in the twelfth century down to the early seventeenth. This is a continuous story since the same romances that constituted the largest and most sophisticated body of secular fiction in the Middle Ages went on to enjoy a new and vibrant popularity at all social levels in black letter prints as the pulp fiction of the Tudor age. This embedded culture was reworked for political and Reformation propaganda and for the writing of England as well as providing a generous reservoir of good stories and dramatic plots. The different ways in which the same texts were read over several centuries or the same motifs shifted meaning as understanding and usage altered provide a revealing and sensitive measure of historical and cultural change. The book accordingly looks at those processes of change as well as at how the motifs themselves work to offer a historical semantics of the language of romance conventions. It also looks at how politics and romance intersect the point where romance comes true. The historicizing of the study of literature is belatedly leading to a wider recognition that the early modern world is built on medieval foundations. This book explores both the foundations and the building. Similarly generic theory which previously tended to operate on transhistorical assumptions is now acknowledging that genre interacts crucially with cultural context with changing audiences and ideologies and means of dissemination. The generation into which Spenser and Shakespeare were born was the last to be brought up on a wide range of medieval romances in their original forms and they could therefore exploit their generic codings in new texts aimed at both elite and popular audiences. Romance may since then have lost much of its cultural centrality but the universal appeal of these same stories has continued to fuel later works from Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress to C. S. Lewis and Tolkien.

The Forest of Medieval Romance Corinne J.

Saunders, 1993 Corinne J Saunders's exploration of the topos of the forest a familiar and ubiquitous motif in the literature of the middle ages is a broad study embracing a range of medieval and Elizabethan texts from the twelfth to the sixteenth centuries the roman d'antiquite Breton lay and courtly romance the hagiographical tradition of the Vita Merlini and the Queste del Saint Graal Spenser and Shakespeare Saunders identifies the forest as a primary romance landscape as a place of adventure love and spiritual vision offers a pleasurable overview of the narrative function of the forest as a literary landscape Based on a close comparative and theoretically non partisan reading of a broad range of literary texts drawn from the European canon Saunders's study explores the continuity and transformation of an important motif in the corpus of medieval literature MODERN LANGUAGE REVIEW Dr CORINNE SAUNDERS teaches in the Department of English at the University of Durham BLURB EXTRACTED FROM TLS REVIEW An immense tract not only of medieval literature but of human experience is engagingly introduced and presented here Corinne Saunders considers first forests in reality a reality which keeps breaking through in romance She looks also at the classical and biblical models including Virgil Statius and Nebuchadnezzar only then does she turn to the non real and non Classical i.e. the medieval and romantic Here she follows a clear chronological plan from twelfth to fifteenth centuries also covering the allegorized landscape of Spenser and the lovers woods of Arden or Athens in Shakespeare Her text by text layout does justice to the variety of possibilities taken up by different authors the forest as a place where men run mad and turn into animals a place of voluntary suffering a focus of significance in the Grail quests a lovers bower above all and centrally the place where the knight is tested and defined even as with Perceval created
