Television An International History:

Television Anthony Smith, 1995 Television long regarded as mere entertainment is now being seriously considered for its significance in all our lives This is the first illustrated international history of our most influential cultural phenomenon Written by a distinguished team of experts it traces the evolution of television from the earliest times to the present assessing its impact in Europe America Japan Australia Africa and the Third World Extensively illustrated and accessibly written Television An International History is a major exploration of the world's most dominant medium Television R. W. Burns, 1998 This book presents a balanced thorough history of television to 1940 considering the factors technical financial and social which influenced and led to the establishment of many of the world's high definition TV broadcasting services This is a major book in the study of history of science technology and media The Historian, Television and Television History Graham Roberts, Philip M. Taylor, Nicholas Pronay, 2001 The collected essays in this book arose out of the groundbreaking conference of the International Association of Media and History which brought together key academics and program makers from around the world involved in history and television including Nicholas Pronay Pierre Sorlin and Taylor Downing These essays offer a dialogue between academics and media practitioners that covers archival access analyses of how different TV systems have represented themselves case studies and the future of television Philip M Taylor is a professor of international communications and the director of the Institute of Communications at the University of Leeds Graham Roberts is a lecturer in communications arts at the University of Leeds European Television Discourse in Transition Helen Kelly-Holmes, 1999 As we enter the age of digital television with its potential offering of five hundred channels this volume addresses the implications of the rapidly changing television environment for societies for groups for identities for communication for our sense of time space place for education for language for genres for our whole way of life

Modernization, Nation-Building, and Television History Stewart Anderson, Melissa Chakars, 2014-11-20 This innovative collection investigates the ways in which television programs around the world have highlighted modernization and encouraged nation building It is an attempt to catalogue and better understand the contours of this phenomenon which took place as television developed and expanded in different parts of the world between the 1950s and the 1990s From popular science and adult education shows to news magazines and television plays few themes so thoroughly penetrated the small screen for so many years as modernization with television producers and state authorities using television programs to bolster modernization efforts Contributors analyze the hallmarks of these media efforts nation building consumerism and consumer culture the education and integration of citizens and the glorification of the nation's technological achievements

The History of Television, 1942 to 2000 Albert Abramson, 2007-09-29 Albert Abramson published with McFarland in 1987 a landmark volume titled The History of Television 1880 1941 massive research Library Journal voluminous documentation Choice many striking old photos The TV Collector At last he has produced the follow up volume the reader may be assured there is no other book in any language that is remotely comparable to it Together these two volumes provide the definitive technical history of the medium Upon the development in the mid 1940s of new cameras and picture tubes that made commercial television possible worldwide the medium rose rapidly to prominence Perhaps even more important was the invention of the video tape recorder in 1956 allowing editing re shooting and rebroadcasting This second volume 1942 to 2000 covers these significant developments and much more Chapters are devoted to television during World War II and the postwar era the development of color television Ampex Corporation s contributions television in Europe the change from helical to high band technology solid state cameras the television coverage of Apollo II the rise of electronic journalism television entering the studios the introduction of the camcorder the demise of RCA at the hands of GE the domination of Sony and Matsushita and the future of television in e cinema and the 1080 P24 format The book is heavily illustrated as is the first volume

A History of Early Television Stephen Herbert,2004 In the 21st Century broadcast television is an established part of the lives of many millions of people all over the world bringing information and entertainment directly into our homes The pieces in this volume date from 1879 to 1934 and consist of a selection of books articles and news items relating to the first developmental period of television before it became the ubiquitous medium that we know today The selection is English language material only

The Television History Book Michele Hilmes,Jason Jacobs,2021-03-11 Traces the history of broadcasting and the influence developments in broadcasting have had over our social cultural and economic practices Examining the broadcasting traditions of the UK and USA The Television History Book make connections between events and tendencies that both unite and differentiate these national broadcasting traditions

The Columbia History of American Television Gary Edgerton,2007-10-12 Television is a form of media without equal It has revolutionized the way we learn about and communicate with the world and has reinvented the way we experience ourselves and others More than just cheap entertainment TV is an undeniable component of our culture and contains many clues to who we are what we value and where we might be headed in the future Media historian Gary R Edgerton follows the technological developments and increasing cultural relevance of TV from its prehistory before 1947 to the Network Era 1948 1975 and the Cable Era 1976 1994 He begins with the laying of the first telegraph line in 1844 which gave rise to the idea that images and sounds could be transmitted over long distances He then considers the remodeling of television s look and purpose during World War II the gender racial and ethnic components of its early broadcasts and audiences its transformation of postwar America and its function in the political life of the country He talks of the birth of prime time and cable the influence of innovators like Sylvester Pat Weaver Boone Arledge and Ted Turner as well as television s entrance into the international market describing the ascent of such programs as Dallas and The Cosby Show and the impact these exports have had on transmitting American culture abroad Edgerton concludes with a discerning look at our current Digital Era 1995 present and the new forms of instantaneous communication that continue to change America s social political and economic landscape Richly researched and engaging Edgerton s history tracks television s growth into a convergent technology a global industry a social catalyst a viable art form and a complex and dynamic reflection of the American mind and character It took only ten years for television to penetrate thirty five million households and by 1983 the average home kept their set on for more than seven hours a day The Columbia History of American Television illuminates our complex relationship with this singular medium and provides historical and critical knowledge for understanding TV as a technology an industry an art form and an institutional force
