Tending Lives:

Tending Lives Echo Heron, 2009-02-04 As the healthcare debate rages on with the growth of the HMO industry nurses quietly continue to provide the day to day grit and deeply felt passion that hold the healing profession together Within these remarkable women and men are poignant outrageous stories drawn from the edge of life But fear of career backlash and reprisals have made them reluctant to talk to outsiders about their experience Now Echo Heron New York Times bestselling author of Intensive Care draws truths far stranger than fiction out of her colleagues and allows the nurses to speak to us in their own words Ranging from inspiring to tragic to outrageously funny these narratives are real life medical dramas as experienced by nurses across the country each practicing in a variety of specialties including cardiac care labor and delivery burns the ER even a nurse who works in dolphin care Tending Lives portrays a penitentiary nurse responsible for orchestrating a murderer's execution a stroke victim who rose out of his depression when his nurses began telling him jokes and perhaps the most riveting testimony the moment by moment memories of several nurses who served in the aftermath of the Oklahoma City bombing gripping accounts that give us new perspectives on the horror and heroism of that nightmare day Pediatric nurses psychiatric nurses home care nurses intensive care nurses all with distinct voices and unique stories to tell Filled with both tears and laughter and charged with the issues that afflict nursing care today Tending Lives is a gripping moving inspiring book a fitting tribute to a noble profession

Tending the Garden Marshall & Julia Welch, 2012-08 Tending the Garden is a unique perspective and approach nurturing of Christian spirituality using the garden and gardening as a metaphor Marshall and Julie Welch combine their experience and expertise in spiritual formation and gardening as an invitation to tending to one's spirituality Whether an experienced or novice gardener the reader will gain insight not only into the art of gardening but Christian spirituality as well Spirituality is presented as a relational way to grow compassion and sensitivity to self others the environment and to God The book can be read individually or as a small book club group Guidelines for facilitating a small group discussion are presented in the introduction Part I consists of 14 short engaging chapters with titles such as Weeding Spiritual Discernment Manure Happens Desolation and Consolation and Thank You Very Much Our Spiritual Security Blanket The narrative is written in a very conversational voice Each chapter begins with scripture and an inspirational quote and concludes with a series of reflection questions as well as tips on how to cultivate one's spirituality The tips are easy to do activities that are grounded in a long tradition of spiritual exercises presented in a contemporary context In Part II the authors also use their experience as co coordinators of a community garden in their own church congregation to present step by step suggestions on how other communities of faith can start and maintain their own garden Church gardens are introduced as a unique form of spiritual formation through a sense of community with other gardeners and a form of mission and ministry

Teenagers' Perspectives on the Role of Religion in their Lives, Schools and Societies. A European Quantitative Study Pille Valk, Gerdien Bertram-Troost, Markus Friederici, Céline

Béraud,2009 Religion is on the European agenda again The secularisation paradigm has lost its explanatory power and the newly coined term post secularism is used to describe the realisation that in the current social transformation religion cannot be ignored any longer The quantitative study presented in this book is part of the research effort by the REDCo project REDCo is the abbreviation for Religion in Education A contribution to Dialogue or a Factor of Conflict in Transforming Societies of European Countries The project brought together nine research teams from eight European countries England Estonia France Germany The Netherlands Norway Russia and Spain The research involved interdisciplinary cooperation between specialists in the different academic fields of education religious education sociology political science anthropology psychology theology and religious studies The book offers valuable interpretations and inspirations on the question how the students in the 14 16 year age group in Europe see the ir relevance of religions for dialogue and conflict in their daily lives in the school environment and in society as a whole The young respondents of the quantitative study are clearly aware that the diversity of religious and non religious worldviews is the reality of the European contexts they have to manage within Most of them are convinced that religion must be addressed in schools as it is too important as factor in social life and for the coexistence of people from different cultural and religious backgrounds throughout Europe to be ignored Light as Air

Jonny Morrison,2022-09-30 Light as Air offers readers freedom from unmet desires a way to disrupt broken systems and an invitation into a life of depth and creative action How By exploring the story of Jesus and the way his kingdom engages our dissatisfaction and invites us into the life we were made for Jesus kingdom is a political reality that overthrows broken systems cultivates meaningful connection and empowers us for creative action Light as Air shows us how to live into and out of Jesus kingdom in a way that gives hope to a dissatisfied world Everyday Creativity Kirin Narayan,2016-11-22 Kirin Narayan s imagination was captured the very first time that as a girl visiting the Himalayas she heard Kangra women join their voices together in song Returning as an anthropologist she became fascinated by how they spoke of singing as a form of enrichment bringing feelings of accomplishment companionship happiness and even good health all benefits of the everyday creativity she explores in this book Part ethnography part musical discovery part poetry part memoir and part unforgettable portraits of creative individuals this unique work brings this remote region in North India alive in sight and sound while celebrating the incredible powers of music in our lives With rare and captivating eloquence Narayan portrays Kangra songs about difficulties on the lives of goddesses and female saints as a path to well being Like the intricate geometries of mandalu patterns drawn in courtyards or the subtle balance of flavors in a meal well crafted songs offer a variety of deeply meaningful benefits as a way of making something of value as a means of establishing a community of shared pleasure and skill as a path through hardships and limitations and as an arena of renewed possibility Everyday Creativity makes big the small world of Kangra song and opens up new ways of thinking about what creativity is to us and why we are so compelled to engage it

On the Cancer Frontier Paul Marks,James Sterngold,2014-03-11 In 1950 a diagnosis of cancer was all but a death sentence Mortality rates only got worse and as late as 1986 an article in the New England Journal of Medicine lamented We are losing the war against cancer Cancer is one of humankind s oldest and most persistent enemies it has been called the existential disease But we are now entering a new and more positive phase in this long campaign While cancer has not been cured and a cure may elude us for a long time yet there has been a revolution in our understanding of its nature Years of brilliant science have revealed how this individualistic disease seizes control of the foundations of life our genes and produces guerrilla cells that can attack and elude treatments Armed with those insights scientists have been developing more effective weapons and producing better outcomes for patients Paul A Marks MD has been a leader in these efforts to finally control this devastating disease Marks helped establish the strategy for the war on cancer in 1971 as a researcher and member of President Nixon s cancer panel As the president and chief executive officer for nineteen years at the world s pre eminent cancer hospital the Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center he was instrumental in ending the years of futility He also developed better therapies that promise a new era of cancer containment Some cancers like childhood leukemia and non Hodgkin s lymphoma that were once deadly conditions are now survivable even curable New steps in prevention and early diagnosis are giving patients even more hope On the Cancer Frontier is Marks account of the transformation in our understanding of cancer and why there is growing optimism in our ability to stop it The Writings of Oliver Wendell

Over the teacups Oliver Wendell Holmes, 1904 Intensive Care: The Story of a Nurse Echo Heron, 1988-05-12 This is a nurse's story unlike any other because Echo Heron is a very special nurse Dedicated to healing and helping in the harshest environments she spent ten years in emergency rooms and intensive care units Her story is unique penetrating and unforgettable Her story is real Compelling reading NEW YORK DAILY NEWS The Complete Works of Virginia Woolf Virginia Woolf, 2024-02-22 This ebook contains Virginia Woolf's complete works This edition has been professionally formatted and contains several tables of contents The first table of contents at the very beginning of the ebook lists the titles of all novels included in this volume By clicking on one of those titles you will be redirected to the beginning of that work where you'll find a new TOC that lists all the chapters and sub-chapters of that specific work The Complete Writings of Oliver Wendell Holmes: Over the teacups Oliver Wendell Holmes, 1892 Nursing against the Odds Suzanne Gordon, 2012-05-15 In the United States and throughout the industrialized world just as the population of older and sicker patients is about to explode we have a major shortage of nurses Why are so many RNs dropping out of health care's largest profession How will the lack of skilled experienced caregivers affect patients These are some of the questions addressed by Suzanne Gordon's definitive account of the world's nursing crisis In Nursing against the Odds one of North America's leading health care journalists draws on in-depth interviews research studies and extensive firsthand reporting to help readers better understand the myriad causes of and possible solutions to the current crisis Gordon examines how health care cost cutting and hospital restructuring undermine the working conditions necessary for quality care She shows how the historically troubled workplace relationships between RNs and physicians become even more dysfunctional in modern hospitals In Gordon s view the public image of nurses continues to suffer from negative media stereotyping in medical shows on television and from shoddy press coverage of the important role RNs play in the delivery of health care Gordon also identifies the class and status divisions within the profession that hinder a much needed defense of bedside nursing She explains why some policy panaceas hiring more temporary workers importing RNs from less developed countries fail to address the forces that drive nurses out of their workplaces To promote better care Gordon calls for a broad agenda that includes safer staffing improved scheduling and other policy changes that would give nurses a greater voice at work She explores how doctors and nurses can collaborate more effectively and what medical and nursing education must do to foster such cooperation Finally Gordon outlines ways in which RNs can successfully take their case to the public while campaigning for health care system reform that actually funds necessary nursing care

Selected Works of Victoria Mary Sackville-West Victoria Mary Sackville-West,2007-01-01 THE first thing which attracted my attention to the man was the shock of white hair above the lean young face But for this I should not have looked twice at him long spare and stooping a shabby figure he crouched over a cup of coffee in a corner of the dingy restaurant at fretful enmity with the world typical I should have said of the furtive London nondescript But that white hair startled me it gleamed out unnaturally cleanly in those not overclean surroundings and although I had propped my book up against the water bottle at my own table where I sat over my solitary dinner I found my eyes straying from the printed page to the human face which gave the promise of greater interest Before very long he became conscious of my glances and returned them when he thought I was not observing him Inevitably however the moment came when our eyes met We both looked away as though taken in fault but when having finished his coffee and laid out the coppers in payment on his table he rose to make his way out between the tables he let his gaze dwell on me as he passed let it dwell on me quite perceptibly quite definitely with an air of curious speculation a hesitation almost an appeal and I thought he was about to speak but instead of that he crushed his hat an old black wideawake down over his strange white hair and hurrying resolutely on towards the swing doors of the restaurant he passed out and was lost in the London night I was uncomfortably haunted after that evening by a sense of guilt I was quite certain with unjustifiable certainty born of instinct that the man had wanted to speak to me and that the smallest response on my part would have encouraged him to do so Why hadn t I given the response A smile would have sufficed a smile wasn t much to demand by one human being of another I thought it very pitiable that the conventions of our social system should persuade one to withhold so small a thing from a fellow creature who perhaps stood in need of it That smile which I might have given but had withheld became for me a sort of symbol I grew superstitious about it built up around it all kinds of extravagant ideas pictured to myself the splash of a body into the river and then recovering my sense of proportion told myself that one really couldn't go about London smiling at people Yet I didn't get the man's face out of my head It was not only the white hair that had made an impression on my mind but the unhappy eyes the timidly beseeching look The man was lonely I was quite sure of that utterly lonely And I had refused a smile I don't know whether to say with more pride than shame or more shame than pride that I went back to the restaurant a week later I had been kept late at my work and there were few diners but he was there sitting at the same table hunched up as before over a cup of coffee Did the man live on coffee He was thin enough in all conscience rather like a long sallow bird with a snowy crest And he had no occupation no book to read nothing better to do than to bend his long curves over the little table and to stab at the sugar in his coffee with his spoon He glanced up when I came in casually at the small stir I made then by his suddenly startled look I saw that he had recognised me I didn't nod to him but I returned his look so steadily that it amounted to a greeting You know those moments when understanding flickers between people Well that was one of those moments I sat down at a table placing myself so that I should face him and very ostentatiously I took a newspaper out of my pocket unfolded it and began to read But through my reading I was aware of him and I knew that he was aware of me At the same time I couldn't help being touched by what I knew I should read in his face the same hostility towards the world at large and towards myself the same appeal half fearful half beseeching It was as though he said aloud and distinctly Let me talk For God's sake let me talk it out And this time I was determined that he should yes I was quite grim over my determination I was going to get at the secret that lay behind those hunted eyes
