Editor s Notes Welcome to Stories of the Buddha a treasury of wisdom drawn from the life and teachings of Sakyamuni Buddha Stories in this collection were originally published in Chinese as Xingyun shuoyu and Fojiao congshu Fotuo 6 by Venerable Master Hsing Yun We have taken the initiative to bring these profound narratives from their original Chinese context into the English language Throughout our translation process we embraced the challenge of honoring these sacred teachings while making them accessible to contemporary readers Rather than pursuing word for word equivalence we have carefully cultivated each story to preserve its spiritual essence and transformative power This approach allows the Buddha's insights to transcend linguistic boundaries and speak directly to the heart of modern audiences. Each story concludes with a summary of its morals, providing readers with a clear understanding of the story's meaning and key lessons. At the end of each story, you will find Dharma Words from Venerable Master Hsing Yun offering a final nugget of wisdom to contemplate. These quotes were carefully selected based on their relevance to the moral of each story. Venerable Master Hsing Yun shared these words of encouragement and advice based on his life experiences, aiming to inspire mindfulness and guide individuals in times of uncertainty. As you turn these pages, you embark on a path walked by countless individuals across centuries and continents. It is our sincere hope that these stories serve not merely as historical accounts but as living teachings illuminating your journey with the same compassionate wisdom that has guided many since the Buddha first shared these teachings beneath the Bodhi tree. May you find in them both the gentle comfort of timeless truth and the vibrant inspiration for your own awakening.

About Venerable Master Hsing Yun: Venerable Master Hsing Yun (1927-2023) was born in Jiangsu Province, China. He studied at various renowned Buddhist institutions, such as Qixia Vinaya College and Jiaoshan Buddhist College. Soon after his arrival in Taiwan in 1949, he became the chief editor of Human Life, a Buddhist magazine. In 1952, his efforts in establishing the Buddhist Chanting Association strengthened the foundation for his subsequent endeavors in the promotion of the Dharma. Venerable Master founded Fo Guang Shan Monastery in 1967 with the primary goal of promoting Humanistic Buddhism through Buddhist education, culture, charity, and propagation of the Dharma. Since then, over two hundred branch temples have been established in major cities around the world. He has also set up art galleries, libraries, publishing houses, bookstores, mobile clinics, Buddhist colleges, and universities, including the University of the West, Fo Guang University, Nanhua University, Nan Tien Institute, and Guang Ming College. In 1977, the Fo Guang Tripitaka Editorial Board was formed to compile the Fo Guang Buddhist Canon and the Fo Guang Dictionary of Buddhism. Many other works on Buddhism have also been published. Venerable Master Hsing Yun has dedicated his life to propagating Humanistic Buddhism. As a global citizen, he fostered joy and harmony, oneness and coexistence, respect and tolerance, and equality and peace throughout the world. When he founded the Buddha's Light International Association in 1991 and was elected president of its world headquarters, he was closer to realizing the ideal of having the Buddha's light shining throughout the three thousand realms and the Dharma water flowing across the five continents. About the Fo Guang Shan Institute of Humanistic Buddhism: Founded in 2013 by Venerable Master Hsing Yun, the Fo Guang Shan Institute of Humanistic Buddhism pursues the objectives of propagating the Buddha's teachings and the Venerable Master's thoughts on Humanistic Buddhism. The Institute endeavors to recruit experts and nurture scholars of Buddhism, gather ancient and contemporary editions of the Buddhist Canons, as well as compile the complete works of Venerable Master Hsing Yun. Through the Center of International Affairs, the Institute translates the works of the Venerable Master and holds the annual Symposium on Humanistic Buddhism, in addition to other international academic forums welcoming outstanding scholars and youths from
