Small Town Neighborhood Walk:

Creating Vibrant Public Spaces Ned Crankshaw, 2012-09-26 Public space and street design in commercial districts can dictate the success or failure of walkable community centers. Instead of focusing our efforts on designing new compact town centers many of which are located in the suburbs we should instead be revitalizing existing authentic town centers. This informative practical book describes methods for restoring the health and vibrancy of the streets and public spaces of our existing commercial districts in ways that will make them positive alternatives to suburban sprawl while respecting their historic character. Clearly written and with numerous photos to enhance the text, Creating Vibrant Public Spaces uses examples from communities across the United States to illustrate the potential for restoring the balance provided by older urban centers between automobile access and walkability. In advice that can be applied to a variety of settings and scales, Crankshaw describes the tenets of contemporary design theory, how to understand the physical evolution of towns, how to analyze existing conditions, and how to evaluate the feasibility of design recommendations. Good design in commercial centers, Crankshaw contends, facilitates movement and access, creates dynamic social spaces, and contributes to the sense of a center, a place where social, commercial, and institutional interaction is more vibrant than in surrounding districts. For all the talk of creating new green urban spaces, the ingredients of environmentally aware design, he points out, can often be found in the deteriorating cores and neighborhoods of towns and cities across the United States. With creativity, planning, and commitment, these centers can thrive again, adding to the quality of local life and contributing to the local economy too.

Walking New Orleans Barri Bronston, 2015-03-10 From neighborhoods such as Lakeview and Mid City to landmarks including the Saenger Theater and Mercedes-Benz Superdome, from its restaurants and music clubs to its parks and museums, the Big Easy has regained the title of one of the world's most fascinating cities. In Walking New Orleans, lifelong resident and writer Barri Bronston shares the love of her hometown through 30 self-guided tours that range from majestic St. Charles Avenue and funky Magazine Street to Bywater and Faubourg Marigny, two of the city's inner neighborhoods. Within each tour, she offers tips on where to eat, drink, dance, and play, in addition to all the history, culture, and charm that New Orleans has to offer, and there's plenty. Faubourg Marigny, it provides tourists and locals alike with one heck of a good time.

Community Wayfinding: Pathways to Understanding Rebecca H. Hunter, Lynda A. Anderson, Basia L. Belza, 2016-05-11 This book examines wayfinding from a broad public health perspective and articulates what needs to be done to create better wayfinding for all people regardless of age, ability, or mode of transportation. Addressing both science and the human experience, the book brings together a group of international experts to examine community wayfinding from a variety of viewpoints. It first presents a critical foundation for understanding wayfinding from an individual perspective. Next, it describes relevant design principles and practices by drawing upon architecture, environmental graphic design, universal design UD and urban planning The book then goes on to examine wayfinding tools and innovative technologies ranging from maps to apps to complex systems In addition coverage includes case studies lessons from wayfinding improvement initiatives and recommendations for future research practice and policy div Overall the book focuses on the economic and commercial benefits of good wayfinding its potential impact on the health of individuals and communities as well as strategies for the journey ahead It will appeal to numerous professionals across many disciplines from architecture and cartography to public health and urban planning Additionally the book can help advance a dialogue among those interested in enhancing the livability of their communities
