Brebbia, D. Viegas, V. Leone, 2008-08-26 At present there is insufficient knowledge of the behavior of fires and how they propagate This lack of information makes it very hard to control these phenomena and is one of the biggest obstacles to the development of a reliable decision support system Public concern regarding this topic is increasing as uncontrolled fires may lead to major ecological disasters and usually result in negative economic and health implications for the region Containing papers presented at the First International Conference on Modelling Monitoring and Management of Forest Fires this book addresses the latest research and applications of available computational tools to analyse and predict the spread of forest fires in order to prevent or reduce major loss of life and property as well as damage to the environment Such tools must be able to take into consideration a large number of different parameters The book thus deals with all aspects of forest fires from fire propagation in different scenarios to the optimum strategies for fire fighting It also covers issues related to economic ecological social and health effects Featured topics include Computer Models for Fire Propagation Risk and Vulnerability Assessment Fire Combustion Models Computational Methods and Experiments Case Studies Emergency Response Systems Optimization Models for Fire Mitigation Environmental Impact Models Air Pollution and Health Risk Interaction between Meteorological and Forest Fires Models Economic Impact Models Forest Material Characterisation Eco Remediation Models Decision Support Systems Monitoring Systems and Data Acquisition and Analysis Fire Safety Science G. Wildland Fire Behaviour Mark A. Finney, Sara S.

McAllister, Jason M. Forthofer, Torben P. Grumstrup, 2021-11 Wildland fires have an irreplaceable role in sustaining many of our forests shrublands and grasslands They can be used as controlled burns or occur as free burning wildfires and can sometimes be dangerous and destructive to fauna human communities and natural resources Through scientific understanding of their behaviour we can develop the tools to reliably use and manage fires across landscapes in ways that are compatible with the constraints of modern society while benefiting the ecosystems The science of wildland fire is incomplete however Even the simplest fire behaviours how fast they spread how long they burn and how large they get arise from a dynamical system of physical processes interacting in unexplored ways with heterogeneous biological ecological and meteorological factors across many scales of time and space The physics of heat transfer combustion and ignition for example operate in all fires at millimetre and millisecond scales but wildfires can become conflagrations that burn for months and exceed millions of hectares Wildland Fire Behaviour Dynamics Principles and Processes examines what is known and unknown about wildfire behaviours The authors introduce fire as a dynamical system along with traditional steady state concepts They then break down the system into its primary physical components describe how they depend upon environmental factors and explore system dynamics by constructing and exercising a nonlinear model The limits of modelling and knowledge are discussed throughout but emphasised by review of large fire behaviours Advancing knowledge of fire behaviours will require a multidisciplinary approach and rely on quality measurements from experimental research as covered in the final chapters reinvented herself within carefully researched historical settings and biographical frameworks that provided both escape and wish fulfillment Through Seton s own journal entries letters and self analyses MacKethan provides an intimate study of what it meant to her to be a writer She details Seton s creative process as well as the difficulties she faced balancing writing with the duties of homemaking and raising three children and the gratitude or more often frustration she felt toward editors and reviewers A compelling portrait emerges of a deeply dedicated writer whose life was full of inner turmoil most of it self inflicted
