Social Radicalism and the Arts Donald Drew Egbert, 1968      Social Radicalism and the Arts, Western Europe Donald Drew Egbert, 1970      The Total Work of Art in European Modernism David Roberts, 2011-12-15 In this groundbreaking book David Roberts sets out to demonstrate the centrality of the total work of art to European modernism since the French Revolution The total work of art is usually understood as the intention to reunite the arts into the one integrated whole but it is also tied from the beginning to the desire to recover and renew the public function of art The synthesis of the arts in the service of social and cultural regeneration was a particularly German dream which made Wagner and Nietzsche the other center of aesthetic modernism alongside Baudelaire and Mallarmé The history and theory of the total work of art pose a whole series of questions not only to aesthetic modernism and its utopias but also to the whole epoch from the French Revolution to the totalitarian revolutions of the twentieth century The total work of art indicates the need to revisit key assumptions of modernism such as the foregrounding of the autonomy and separation of the arts at the expense of the countertendencies to the reunion of the arts and cuts across the neat equation of avant gardism with progress and deconstructs the familiar left right divide between revolution and reaction the modern and the antimodern Situated at the interface between art religion and politics the total work of art invites us to rethink the relationship between art and religion and art and politics in European modernism In a major departure from the existing literature David Roberts argues for twin lineages of the total work a French revolutionary and a German aesthetic which interrelate across the whole epoch of European modernism culminating in the aesthetic and political radicalism of the avant garde movements in response to the crisis of autonomous art and the accelerating political crisis of European societies from the 1890s forward      Social Radicalism and the Arts... Donald Drew Egbert, Clinton Rossiter, 1970      Art Nouveau in Fin-de-Siècle France Debora L. Décoration & Le Rationalisme Architecturaux a L'Exposition Universelle Meredith L. Clausen, 1987      Arts for Change Beverly Naidus, 2009-04-01 Arts for Change presents strategies and theory for teaching socially engaged art with an historical and contemporary overview of the field The book features interviews with over thirty maverick artists faculty from colleges and universities in the United States Canada and Great Britain whose pedagogy is drawn from and informs activist arts practice The issues these teaching artists address are provocative and diverse Some came to this work through personal healing from injustice and trauma or by witnessing oppressions that became intolerable Many have taught for decades deeply influenced by social movements of the 1960s and 1970s yet because the work is controversial tenured positions are rare

Language and State Xing Yu, 2017-05-19 This book argues that a tribe of the primitive society is formed because of kinship while a state of the civilized society is formed because of language When humans communicate using language they extend the distance and the reaches of communication They expand their communities States replace tribes Language underlies the formation of the state Then accordingly language also underlies the organization of the state as men create language solutions in the organization of the state such as constitution election and representation The extension of linguistic communication distance also underlies the formation of three juxtaposing branches of government administrative legislative and judicial body It also enables men to create various forms of civilization such as history philosophy literature art religion and law which play a role in the construction of men's spirit that guides the operation of the state Language presets the whole process of the progress of civilization
