Parliament. House of Commons. Select Committee on Science and Technology, Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Science and Technology Committee, Andrew Miller, 2014-05-04 The Government launched its new horizon scanning programme last July stating that in a tight economic climate it is more important than ever to have the best possible understanding of the world around us and how that world is changing However as it stands the new programme is little more than an echo chamber for Government views The new bodies that have been created consist entirely of Civil Servants effectively excluding the vast pool of expertise that exists outside of government The new programme does not even have a dedicated web presence to keep interested parties informed The programme's failings are partially attributed to a lack of ministerial oversight The Government also needs to recognise the potential role to be played in the new programme by the Government Office for Science GO Science specifically the Foresight Unit The relative lack of impact that the Foresight Unit has historically had on policy is largely a result of its non central location in government GO Science is located in the Department of Business Innovation and Skills BIS In contrast the new horizon scanning programme is located in the Cabinet Office In choosing to situate the new horizon scanning programme in the Cabinet Office the Government has recognised the importance of location and has thereby acknowledged the strength of this argument GO Science should be relocated from BIS to the Cabinet Office where it can play a more central role in the new programme and more effectively fulfill its role of ensuring that the best scientific evidence is utilised across government New Formulas for America's Workforce, 2003
