Social Science in an Age of Change Donald W. Calhoun, 1971 Social Science in an Age on Change Donald Wallace Calhoun, 1978 Population Change and the Economy: Social Science Theories and Models Andrew M. Isserman, 2012-12-06

Population change and population forecasts are receiving considerable attention from governmental planners and policy makers as well as from the private sector. Old patterns of population redistribution, industrial location, labor force participation, household formation and fertility are changing. The resulting uncertainty has increased interest in forecasting because mere extrapolations of past trends are proving inadequate. In the United States of America, population forecasts received even more attention after federal agencies began distributing funds for capital infrastructure to state and local governments on the basis of projected future populations. If the national government had based those funding decisions on locally prepared projections, the optimism of local officials would have resulted in billions of dollars worth of excess capacity in sewage treatment plants alone. Cabinet level inquiries concluded that the U.S. Department of Commerce should 1. assume the responsibility for developing a single set of projections for use whenever future population was a consideration in federal spending decisions and 2. develop methods which incorporate both economic and demographic factors causing population change. Neither the projections prepared by economists at the Bureau of Economic Analysis nor those prepared by demographers at the Bureau of the Census were considered satisfactory because neither method adequately recognized the intertwined nature of demographic and economic change. Against this background, the American Statistical Association (ASA) and the U.S. The Social Sciences in a Global Age Dipankar Sinha, 2020-11-25. The book focuses on the status and role of the social sciences in the current millennium. Drawing inspiration from a range of theorists, it critically examines the key debates on the social science stream and focuses on its irrelevance in our times in the background of changing state-market dialectics. It specifically scrutinises knowledge politics of the global times to reveal how the neoliberal project aligns and fuses steep economic conditionalities with professional cultural parameters of higher academia to constrain autonomy and weaken radical expressions in social science pedagogy and research. Asserting that the humanistic core of social sciences has the potential to resist acts of reducing knowledge to a monochromatic form, the book argues that the social science stream can challenge and resist such hegemonic ambitions. It also identifies and analyses the contradictions, dilemmas, predicaments and false steps of social scientists and avoids a reductive approach based on the west versus non-west binary. The volume will be of interest to scholars and researchers of the social sciences in general and of sociology, politics of knowledge, political theory, political sociology and education in particular. Social Change in the Age of Globalization Tiankui Jing, Masamichi Sasaki, Peilin Li, 2006-08-01.
