Intergovernmental Policy Capacity in Canada Gregory J. Inwood, Patricia O'Reilly, Carolyn M. Johns, 2011 In a highly networked world where governments must cope with increasingly complex and inter related policy problems the capacity of policy makers to work intergovernmentally is not an option but a necessity regory Inwood Carolyn Johns and Patricia O Reilly offer unique insights into intergovernmental policy capacity revealing what key decision makers and policy advisors behind the scenes think the barriers are to improved intergovernmental policy capacity and what changes they recommend Senior public servants from all jurisdictions in Canada discuss the ideas institutions actors and relations that assist or impede intergovernmental policy capacity Covering good and bad economic times and comparing insiders concerns and recommendations with those of scholars of federalism public policy and public administration they provide a comparative analysis of major policy areas across fourteen governments ntergovernmental policy capacity while of increasing importance is not well understood By examining how the Canadian federation copes with today s policy challenges the authors provide guideposts for federations and governments around the world working on the major policy issues of our day Employment Policies and Multilevel Governance Roger Blanpain, Brian Langille, 2009-04-29 In Europe work has long been a symbol of full citizenship and today work is a fundamental goal of European social policy However although every person has the right to work it is becoming clearer all the time that unemployment is not due merely to a lack of encouragement to exercise this right but at least in part to some deeper defects in the implementation of effective employment policies. As a contribution to defining the nature of these problems, this important collection of essays targets the phenomena of multilevel governance both vertical (European, national, regional, local) and horizontal (administrative institutions, trade unions, business representatives, NGOs), showing with detailed analysis and data how coordination or conflict between the various levels advances or fails to advance the goals of employment policy. Regarding the EU, five EU Member States are examined, plus for comparative analysis the parallel Canadian federal model, with the authors addressing such concrete issues as the impact of globalisation and Europeanisation on employment policies, distribution of tasks in the Open Method of Coordination (OMC), involvement of private and economic agents, the increasing significance of international political agents, flexicurity as an employment strategy, the difficulty of integrating the excluded coordination with education and fiscal policies, social inclusion from the point of view of international human rights and gender mainstreaming as a weakening of the EU guarantee of gender equality. The essays originated in a research meeting held at the Instituto Internacional de Sociología Jurídica at Oñati, Spain, in June of 2007. Some of the contributors are employment law experts who discuss problematic aspects of the European Employment Strategy (EES) and its influence on the decentralization of employment policies and related elements of social protection. Other authors concentrate on built-in multilevel problems resulting from existing constitutional and administrative structures, while a third group focuses on substantive approaches to employment policies within individual member states. The Bulletin contains updated versions of all papers. In this book, the degree of administrative, legal, political and cultural intricacy involved in a serious engagement with multilevel governance of employment on the European model is put on full view. As a deeply informed analysis of how the idea of multilevel governance has played out within the political and administrative reality of Member States, the book will prove of enormous value to labour and employment law professionals anywhere as the problems identified here have a global reach.

Reconsidering the Institutions of Canadian

Federalism J. Peter Meekison, Hamish Telford, Harvey Lazar, 2004. Beginning with an examination of the role of traditional institutions such as Parliament, Cabinet, the Supreme Court and political parties, Canada State of the Federation 2002 affirms the long-held belief that these bodies do not provide effective forums for interregional bargaining, creating a void that has been filled at least in part by executive federalism. Contributors conclude that the performance of traditional institutions taken as a whole has deteriorated over the last several decades, placing more pressure on the processes of executive federalism. The Territorial Politics of Welfare Nicola McEwen, Luis Moreno, 2008-08-28.
