Manning the Future Legions of the United States Donald Vandergriff, 2008-10-30 An Industrial Age model continues to shape the way the Army approaches its recruiting personnel management training and education This outdated personnel management paradigm designed for an earlier era has been so intimately tied to the maintenance of Army culture that a self perpetuating cycle has formed diminishing the Army s attempts to develop adaptive leaders and institutions This cycle can be broken only if the Army accepts rapid evolutionary change as the norm of the new era Recruiting the right people then having them step into an antiquated organization means that many of them will not stay as they find their ability to contribute and develop limited by a centralized hierarchical organization Recruiting and retention data bear this out Several factors have combined to force the Army to think about the way it develops and nurtures its leaders Yet Vandergriff maintains mere modifications to today's paradigm may not be enough Today's Army has to do more than post rhetoric about adaptability on briefing slides and in literature One cannot divorce the way the Army accesses promotes and selects its leaders from its leadership development model The Army cannot expect to maintain leaders who grasp and practice adaptability if these officers encounter an organization that is neither adaptive nor innovative Instead Army culture must become adaptive and the personnel system must evolve into one that nurtures adaptability in its policies practices and beliefs Only a detailed comprehensive plan where nothing is sacred will pave the way to cultural evolution
