

SOUTH AFRICA'S OPTIONS

Strategies for Sharing Power by P. van der Stoep and David Worton

(David Philip: Cape Town, 1994) (Jagger: London)

Reviewed by J. Greenhalgh

This volume by van der Stoep and Worton, drawing on the literature that is concerned with the political processes that have shaped South Africa since 1945, presents a number of options for the future of the country. The authors argue that the country is at a crossroads and that the future of the country will be determined by the choices that are made in the coming years.

When van der Stoep and Worton first published this book in 1994, South Africa was a young democracy. The authors were concerned with the future of the country and the role of the state. They argued that the state should be a facilitator of development and that it should be a provider of social services. They also argued that the state should be a provider of social justice and that it should be a provider of social security.
