South Uist Archaeology And History Of The Dark Island:

Prehistoric Britain Joshua Pollard, 2008-06-23 Informed by the latest research and in depth analysis Prehistoric Britain provides students and scholars alike with a fascinating overview of the development of human societies in Britain from the Upper Paleolithic to the end of the Iron Age Offers readers an incisive synthesis and much needed overview of current research themes Includes essays from leading scholars and professionals who address the very latest trends in current research Explores the interpretive debates surrounding major transitions in British prehistory South Uist Michael Parker Pearson, Niall M. Sharples, James Symonds, 2004 Archaeology and history of South Uist Archaeologies of the British Susan Lawrence, 2003-04-17 Beginning with the early English colonisation of Ireland and Virginia the international range of contributors in Archaeology of the British examine the interplay of objects and identity in Scotland and Wales regional England Canada Australia South Africa Cyprus and Sri Lanka Informed by developments in historical archaeology and by postcolo A Norse Settlement in the Outer Hebrides Niall Sharples, 2019-12-19 The settlement at Bornais in the Western Isles of Scotland is one of the largest rural settlements known from the Norse period in Britain It spans the period from the fifth to the fifteenth century AD when the Atlantic seaboard was subject to drastic changes The islands were systematically ravaged by Viking raiders and then colonised by Norse settlers In the following centuries the islanders were central to the emergence of the Kingdom of Man and the Isles played a crucial role in the development of the Lordship of the Isles and were finally assimilated into the Kingdom of Scotland This volume explores the stratigraphic sequence uncovered by the excavation of Bornais mounds 2 and 2A The excavation of mound 2 revealed a sequence of high status buildings that span the Norse occupation of the settlement One of these houses constructed at the end of the eleventh century AD was a well preserved bow walled longhouse and the careful excavation and detailed recording of the floor layers has revealed a wealth of finds that provides invaluable insight into the activities taking place in this building The final house in this sequence is very different in form and use and clearly indicates the increasing Scottish influence on the region at the beginning of the thirteenth century The excavation of mound 2A provides an insight into the less prestigious areas of the settlement and contributes a significant amount of evidence on the settlement economy The area was initially cultivated before it became a settlement local and throughout its life a focus on agricultural activities such as grain drying and processing appears to have been important In the thirteenth century the mound was occupied by a craftsman who produced composite combs gaming pieces and simple tools The evidence presented in this volume makes a major contribution to the understanding of Norse Scotland and the colonisation of the North Atlantic in a period of dramatic transformations

Explaining Social Change Colin Renfrew, John F. Cherry, Christopher Scarre, Stephen Shennan, 2004 These papers look at the increasingly influential role of social archaeology an area in which Colin Renfrew has been a key player Topics covered include the development of the human mind trade and exchange social change chiefdoms and states and the archaeology of island societies The Zooarchaeology of Fats, Oils, Milk and Dairying International Council for Archaeozoology. Conference, International Council for Archaeozoology, 2005 Fat has been cast as a villain in our modern Western society but for many economies past and present the availability of foods rich in fat could mean the difference between life and death But fat has more to offer than nutrition fats can be used in waterproofing as lubrication and as a base for other items such as perfumes and cosmetics This variety of use means that fats have been a valuable trading commodity for thousands of years The various ways in which fats can be utilised has important implications for the archaeological record The physical methods of extracting the fat from a dead animal will leave differing signs on the carcass while the removal of fats while an animal is alive such as milking has been the focus of much ethnographic research Then there is the matter of how the fats are stored and so on The zooarchaeological study of fats is a complex interdisciplinary area of archaeology The nineteen papers in this volume represent a firm foundation for further research into the past exploitation of this heroic substance The Birsay Bay Project Christopher D. Morris, 2021-06-23 The Brough of Birsay was the power center of the Viking earldom of Orkney and is one of Historic Environment Scotland's key monuments and visitor attractions on the islands This publication is the culmination of 60 years of investigations that took place on the site between 1954 and 2014 This new volume incorporates comprehensive accounts of work undertaken by Dr Ralegh Radford and Mr Stewart Cruden between 1954 and 1964 excavations by the Viking and Early Settlement Research Project under the direction of the author on site between 1974 and 1981 a rescue excavation in 1993 a geophysical survey in 2007 and archival research up to 2014 Specialist artefactual and palaeobiological studies of metallurgical material ogham inscriptions and a gilt bronze mount of Insular origin are included together with re analysis of the radiocarbon dates from all sites in Birsay Bay and a re assessment of the architecture and dating of the church and related buildings on the Brough itself The final two chapters put the Brough as both a Pictish power center and the hub of the Viking earldom in the overall context of Birsay Bay and Viking and late Norse Orkney and the wider world between the Pictish and late Norse Medieval periods As well as being the author's third and final volume reporting on work for the Birsay Bay Project this volume completes a trilogy of studies of the Brough itself alongside Mrs Cecil Curle's and Prof John Hunter's earlier monographs Archaeological Fieldwork and Opportunities Bulletin ,1998 Celtic-Norse Relationships in the Irish Sea in the Middle Ages 800-1200 ,2013-11-29 This volume contains the proceedings of a conference held in Oslo in late 2005 which brought together scholars working in a wide variety of disciplines from Scandinavia Great Britain and Ireland The papers here began as those read at the conference augmented by two written immediately after by attendees but have been updated in light of the discussions in Oslo and more recent scholarship They offer historical archaeological art historical religious historical and philological views of the interaction and interdependence of Celtic and Norse populations in the Irish Sea region in the period 800 A D 1200 A D Contributors are Ian Beuermann Barbara Crawford Claire Downham Fiona Edmonds Colm n Etchingham Zanette T Gl rstad John Hines Alan Lane Julie Lund Jan Erik Rekdal and

David Wyatt Atlantic Connections and Adaptations R. A. Housley, Geraint Coles, 2004 Maritime communications have played a vital role in shaping both human cultures and the biogeography of the North Atlantic Realm These papers explore the diversity of human environments and cultural adaptations present within the eastern part of the North Atlantic Realm

Between Land and Sea Michael Parker Pearson, Jacqui Mulville, Niall M. Sharples, Helen Smith, 1999 Prehistoric stone towers known as brochs are found only in Scotland Excavations at the broch of Dun Vulan on the island of South Uist have revealed new details of how the Iron Age inhabitants constructed and used these monumental buildings The innovative integration of scientific and environmental analyses of the broch's interior and its associated settlement contributes to a new understanding of Iron Age cosmology and domestic practice This book demonstrates how current issues in archaeological theory can be addressed directly through excavation and archaeological science Royal Historical Society Annual

Bibliography of British and Irish History Austin Gee, 2001-10-18 The Royal Historical Society's Annual Bibliography of British and Irish History provides a comprehensive and authoritative survey of books and articles published in a single calendar year It covers all periods of British and Irish history from Roman Britain to the end of the twentieth century and also includes a section on imperial and Commonwealth history It is the most complete and up to date bibliography of its type and an indispensable tool for historians From Clan to Clearance Keith Branigan, 2005 The Hebridean island of Barra has witnessed some of the most important moments in Scottish history from the Norse invaders of c AD900 through to the Jacobite rebellion This book not only describes the history of the island but also details the blackhouses and shielings of the ordinary clansmen Townships to Farmsteads John Andrew Atkinson, Iain Banks, Gavin MacGregor, 2000 Based on a conference held in Glasgow in 1997 on Medieval or Later Rural Settlement the 27 papers in this volume approach the subject from an interdisciplinary perspective including historical research social history theory environmental sciences and the study of past communities Packed full of information archaeological and historical data and with an impressive line up of contributors these studies address a clear need for integration and exchange of ideas across Britain North Uist Erskine Beveridge, 1911 Crossing Paths Or Sharing Tracks? Audrey J. Horning, Marilyn Palmer, 2009 This volume brings together over 30 leading scholars in post medieval archaeology and examines where this relatively new discipline has developed from and perhaps more importantly where it is going in the decades to come Outer Hebrides Mark Rowe, 2025-06-19 This new thoroughly updated third edition of Bradt's Outer Hebrides is the only up to date guidebook to focus solely on Scotland's Western Isles the islands of Lewis Harris St Kilda Berneray North Uist Benbecula South Uist Eriskay Barra and Vatersay Informed and intimate this guidebook is ideal for people who travel with curious minds to discover places of great cultural historical and wildlife interest The Outer Hebrides is an archipelago of 15 inhabited islands and more than 50 others that are free of human footprint It is perfect for a staycation where you can get off the beaten track switching off from the modern world Huge variations in landscape are found across the islands from Lewisian gneiss which dates back almost three billion years to rugged Harris with its magnificent almost unbroken sands running down its western flanks and the undulating flatness and jagged sea lochs of the Uists Here Gaelic is increasingly spoken driven both by a strong sense of regional identity but also unexpectedly boosted by commitment from many incomers Ancient monuments abound from enigmatic 2 000 year old brochs to Tobha Mor the earliest Christian site on the Outer Hebrides Here too are the Standing Stones of Callanish where a vibrant new visitor centre opens in 2025 and the Uig peninsula where the Lewis Chessmen were uncovered nearly 200 years ago Nature lovers can watch stunning seabird colonies birds of prey seals and red deer or become absorbed in the machair grassy coastal zones that are transformed into glorious carpets of wildflowers in late spring and summer Walkers have an impressive choice of routes while cyclists can enjoy the new Hebridean Way cycle trail Alongside providing all the practical details you could ever need experienced journalist Mark Rowe contextualises your visit with detailed and enlightening background information from geography and geology to art and architecture via extensive coverage of wildlife New elements of this third edition include advice on camping and campervanning a round up of deserted villages and first malt whisky produced on Harris Whatever floats your boat Bradt s Outer Hebrides is your perfect travel companion

Monstrous Fishes and the Mead-Dark Sea Vicki E. Szabo,2008-01-31 Medieval people viewed whales in complex and contradictory ways from marvelous to monstrous to mundane heaven sent or hell bent Despite this whales are conspicuous in their absence from most historical and archaeological dialogues on the Middle Ages Drawing upon a wealth of legal literary and material evidence this work details the ways in which whales were sought out and scavenged at sea and shore fought over in legal and physical battles and prized for meat bone and fuel Using Old Norse sagas laws and material culture alongside comparative historical and ethnographic evidence Monstrous Fishes and the Mead Dark Sea reexamines the value of whales in the medieval North Atlantic world

Archaeologies of Totalitarianism, Authoritarianism, and Repression James Symonds,Pavel Vařeka,2020-08-19 This book offers new insights into the mechanisms of state control systematic repression and mass violence focused on ethnic political class and religious minorities in the recent past The geographical and temporal scope of the volume breaks new ground as international scholars foreground how contemporary archaeology can be used to enhance the documentation and interpretation of totalitarian and authoritarian regimes to advance theoretical approaches to atrocities and to broaden public understandings of how such regimes use violence and repression to hold on to power
