Haas,2018-09-05 How do leaders perceive threat levels in world politics and what effects do those perceptions have on policy choices Mark L Haas focuses on how ideology shapes perception He does not delineate the content of particular ideologies but rather the degree of difference among them Degree of ideological difference is he believes the crucial factor as leaders decide which nations threaten and which bolster their state s security and their own domestic power These threat perceptions will in turn impel leaders to make particular foreign policy choices Haas examines great power relations in five periods the 1790s in Europe the Concert of Europe 1815 1848 the 1930s in Europe Sino Soviet relations from 1949 to 1960 and the end of the Cold War In each case he finds a clear relationship between the degree of ideological differences that divided state leaders and those leaders perceptions of threat level and so of appropriate foreign policy choices These relationships held in most cases regardless of the nature of the ideologies in question the offense defense balance and changes in the international distribution of power Ruling Communist Parties and Their Status Under Law Dietrich André Loeber,1986-11-18 This is the first treatise on Russia s new legal system as it emerged from the dissolution of the Soviet Union The first part of the book analyses in detail the political economic origins of perestroika indispensable for understanding the basic parameters of the evolution of Russian law In the following chapters all major legal subjects are discussed against the background of their Soviet past as the result of the radical changes in the political social economic make up of the country The appendices include the texts of the U S S R Russian Constitutions the Agreement of Minsk The Russian Federation Treaty bibliographical sources extensive indices of Soviet Russian legislation The book has been written for legal practitioners comparative lawyers students of Russian law but will also be of interest to a wider audience of political scientists journalists etc Problems of Communism ,1973 Soviet and Chinese Communism Donald W. Treadgold,1968 The Chinese Communist Party's Nomenklatura System John P. Burns,2019-12-16 The term nomenklatura means nomenclature a list of positions arranged in order of seniority including a description of the duties of each office Perhaps the major instrument of Communist Party control of contemporary China s political economic social and cultural institutions is the nomenklatura system The system consists of lists of leading positions over which party units exercise the power to make appointments and dismissals lists of reserves or candidates for these positions and institutions and processes for making the appropriate personnel changes China s nomenklatura system has evolved to suit the needs of party leaders to control the state develop the economy and ensure that party policies are carried out throughout society Technology and East-West Trade United States. External Research Division, 1965 China's Road to Disaster: Mao, Central Politicians and Provincial Leaders in the Great Leap Forward, 1955-59 Frederick C Teiwes, Warren Sun, 2016-07-01 This text analyzes the dramatic shifts in Chinese Communist Party economic policy during the mid to late 1950s which eventually resulted in 30 to 45 million deaths through starvation as a result of the failed policies of the Great Leap Forward Teiwes examines both the substance and the process of economic policy making in that period explaining how the rational policies of opposing rash advance in 1956 57 gave way to the fanciful policies of the Great Leap and assessing responsibility for the failure to adjust adequately those policies even as signs of disaster began to reach higher level decision makers In telling this story Teiwes focuses on key participants in the process throughout both rational and utopian phases Mao other top leaders central economic bureaucracies and local party leaders The analysis rejects both of the existing influential explanations in the field the long dominant power politics approach focusing on alleged clashes within the top leadership and David Bachman's recent institutional interpretation of the origins of the Great Leap Instead this study presents a detailed picture of an exceptionally Mao dominated process where no other actor challenged his position where the boldest step any actor took was to try and influence his preferences and where the system in effect became paralyzed while Mao kept changing signals as disaster unfolded Trade and technology United States. well as economic development in a populous and poor agrarian nation This volume then assesses the economic performance and social consequences of China s political economy over four decades with a focus on China s countryside and city countryside relations In addition to a reconceptualization and updating of the introductory chapter there is a new chapter The Social Origins and Limits of the Chinese Democratic Movement Competitive Interference and Twentieth Century Diplomacy Richard W. Cottam,1967-09-15 With nuclear proliferation essentially eliminating full scale warfare governments have increasingly turned to what Richard W Cottam calls competitive interference This type of policy invokes counter insurgency political economic and psychological manipulations and often involves looking deeply into the internal affairs of a country often secretly Cottam describes and defines competitive interference explores the United States institutional adjustment to it and provides a theoretical framework for projection and evaluation of foreign policy in this changing diplomatic arena He uses case studies of international relationships involving the United States India China Vietnam Iran and the former USSR and East Germany to evaluate his theoretical stance and proposes long term institutionalization of policy rather than covert operations 1967 Annual Supplement John B.
