Introduction

On October 12-13, 2023, the conference "China's Belt & Road Initiative (BRI) at Ten: The World According to China and China According to the World" was hosted at the Boston University Hillel House.¹ Co-chaired by Andrew R. Wilson and Grant F. Rhode, this event marked the 10th anniversary of China's ambitious BRI project. The conference, a joint endeavor of the U.S. Naval War College and the Pardee School of Global Studies Center for the Study of Asia at Boston University, aimed to critically evaluate the BRI's geopolitical, economic, and strategic influences on the world over the past decade and assess possible futures for the BRI moving forward.

The conference agenda was meticulously planned to offer a comprehensive examination of the BRI from diverse perspectives and regional insights. Grant Rhode and Kathleen Walsh² opened the conference by providing context remarks about the BRI. Scott Taylor, Dean of the Pardee School, and Andrew Wilson, John A. van Beuren Chair of Asia-Pacific Studies at the Naval War College, welcomed the conference participants and set the stage for the conference program. The agenda consisted of two keynote talks and four panels with four speakers each, each panel followed by Q&A sessions.

Opening Keynote Address: China's Big Vision and the Challenges It Faces

David M. Lampton presented the keynote address for the conference. He focused on China's ambitious global vision and the ensuing challenges, emphasizing the necessity for Western countries to acknowledge the critical role of infrastructure

¹ Acknowledgements: The conference organizers gratefully acknowledge conference sponsor financial support from the John A. Beuren Chair of Asia-Pacific Studies through the US Naval War College Foundation, and administrative and venue support by the Boston University Pardee School of Global Studies through primary sponsorship by the Center for the Study of Asia and co-sponsorship by the African Studies Center, the Global Development Policy Center, and the Pardee Center for the Study of the Longer-Range Future.

² Brief biographies of the speakers appear in the speakers' list at the end of this Occasional Paper text.

Switzerland And War Occasional Papers In Swib Studies

Joy Charnley, Malcolm Pender

Switzerland And War Occasional Papers In Swib Studies :

Switzerland and War Joy Charnley, Malcolm Pender, 1999 Switzerland and War addresses the paradox that Switzerland a country neutral for over four centuries has an equally long tradition of bearing arms The communal decision after the defeat at Marignano in 1515 to avoid hostilities against external powers was confirmed at the Congress of Vienna in 1815 and Switzerland managed to remain neutral but over the same period there has been armed conflict within Switzerland the last example as late as 1847 Although Switzerland was spared physical destruction in the twentieth century the country was inevitably marked by the measures necessary during war time and by the changes wrought as peace was established The six contributions to this second volume of Occasional Papers in Swiss Studies trace the effects of war on Switzerland over the last 150 years from a historical sociological and literary perspective and show the impact of war on a non combatant nation
