

THE REFORMERS

Socialist Feminism

1970s

• The 1970s saw the rise of socialist feminism, which combined the ideas of socialism and feminism. Socialist feminists argued that the oppression of women was not just a result of patriarchy, but also a result of capitalism. They believed that the capitalist system exploited women's labor and that the patriarchal system oppressed women's rights. Socialist feminists sought to combine the struggle for social justice with the struggle for women's equality. They argued that the only way to achieve true equality for women was to overthrow the capitalist system and replace it with a socialist system. Socialist feminism was a response to the limitations of both socialism and feminism. It recognized that the struggle for social justice and the struggle for women's equality were interconnected and that they could not be separated. Socialist feminists believed that the only way to achieve true equality for women was to fight against both capitalism and patriarchy.

Key Figures

- Betty Friedan: Author of The Feminine Mystique, which popularized the idea of the "feminine mystique" and the "second shift."
- Germaine Greer: Author of The Female Eunuch, which explored the concept of the "female mystique" and the "female orgasm."

Working-Class Fiction Nicola Wilson, 2016-03-09 Home in British Working Class Fiction offers a fresh take on British working class writing that turns away from a masculinist work based understanding of class in favour of home gender domestic labour and the family kitchen As Nicola Wilson shows the history of the British working classes has often been written from the outside with observers looking into the world of the inhabitants Here Wilson engages with the long cultural history of this gaze and asks how home is represented in the writing of authors who come from a working class background Her book explores the depiction of home as a key emotional and material site in working class writing from the Edwardian period through to the early 1990s Wilson presents new readings of classic texts including The Ragged Trousered Philanthropists Love on the Dole and Saturday Night and Sunday Morning analyzing them alongside works by authors including James Hanley Walter Brierley Lewis Grassie Gibbon Buchi Emecheta Pat Barker James Kelman and the rediscovered ex mill girl novelist Ethel Carnie Holdsworth Wilson's broad understanding of working class writing allows her to incorporate figures typically ignored in this context as she demonstrates the importance of home's role in the making and expression of class feeling and identity

A Bibliography of Female Economic Thought up to 1940 Kirsten Madden, Michele Pujol, Janet Seiz, 2004-03-01 Contributions to female economic thought have come from prolific scholars leading social reformers economic journalists and government officials along with many other women who contributed only one or two works to the field It is perhaps for this reason that a comprehensive bibliographic collection has failed to appear until now This innovative book brings together the most comprehensive collection to date of references to women's economic writing from the 1770s to 1940 It includes thousands of contributions from more than 1 700 women from the UK the US and many other countries This bibliography is an important reference work for systematic inquiry into questions of gender and the history of economic thought This volume is a valuable resource and will interest researchers on women's contributions to economic thought the sociology of economics and the lives of female social scientists and activist authors With a comprehensive editorial introduction it fills a long standing gap and will be greeted warmly by scholars of the history of economic thought and those involved in feminist economics
