Trajectory of Land Reform in Post-Colonial African States Adeoye O. Akinola,Henry Wissink,2018-06-13 This book is an examination of post colonial land reforms across various African states One of the decisive contradictions of colonialism in Africa was the distortion of use access to and ownership of land Land related issues and the need for land reform have consistently occupied a unique position in public discourse in Africa The post colonial African states have had to embark on concerted efforts at redressing historical grounded land policies and addressing the growing needs of land by the poor However agitations for land continue while evidence of policy gaps abound In many cases policy change in terms of land use distribution and ownership has reinforced inequalities and affected power and social relations in respective post colonial African countries Land has assumed major causes of structural violence and impediments to human and rural development in Africa hence the need for holistic assessment of land reforms in post colonial African states The central objective of the text is to identify post independence and current trends in land reform and to address the grievances in relation to land use ownership and distribution The book suggests practicable policy options towards addressing the land hunger and conflict which could derail the moderate socio economic achievements and political stability recorded by post colonial African nation states The book draws its strength and uniqueness from its adoption of country specific case studies which places the book in context and utilizes field studies methodology which generate new knowledge on the continental land question Taking a holistic approach to understanding Africa s land question this book will be attractive to academicians and students interested in policy and development African politics post colonial development and policy and conflict studies as well as policy makers working in relevant areas

Land of the ANCESTORS Justice Seutloali, 2024-10-31 Land of the Ancestors Expropriation a Necessity for Justice by Justice Seutloali explores the complex history of land dispossession and the urgent need for land expropriation without compensation in South Africa The book delves into the brutal colonial and apartheid era land thefts highlighting how indigenous communities were stripped of their ancestral lands through violent means It argues that true justice and reconciliation can only be achieved by addressing this historical injustice The book traces the evolution of land reform policies in post apartheid South Africa illustrating how existing efforts have fallen short of restoring land to its rightful owners Seutloali makes a compelling case for land expropriation without compensation as a necessary step in rectifying these past wrongs and achieving social and economic justice Central to the argument is the role of grassroots movements and civil society in advocating for land reform The book amplifies the voices of those directly affected by land dispossession offering perspectives from the ground that underscore the importance of land ownership for dignity identity and economic empowerment The author also examines the positive economic impacts that land reform could have from alleviating poverty to boosting agricultural productivity The book engages with international perspectives on land reform exploring how global movements have influenced South Africa s approach and contributed to shaping the country s path forward The book is not a call for revenge but for justice It refutes the fearmongering narrative of violent land grabs and presents land expropriation as a legal democratic and necessary process Seutloali highlights that the struggle for land is not only a struggle for property but a fight for justice equality and the rightful restoration of dignity to South Africa s historically oppressed majority Land of the Ancestors is a thought provoking and timely exploration of the land question calling for decisive action to reshape the future of South Africa through just and equitable land reform policies
