US Foreign Policy and the End of the Cold War in Africa Flavia Gasbarri,2020-05-07 This book investigates the end of the Cold War in Africa and its impact on post Cold War US foreign policy in the continent The fall of the Berlin Wall is widely considered the end of the Cold War however it documents just one of the many ends since the Cold War was a global conflict This book looks at one of the most neglected extra European battlegrounds the African continent and explores how American foreign policy developed in this region between the late 1980s and the early 1990s Drawing on a wide range of recently disclosed documents the book shows that the Cold War in Africa ended in 1988 preceding the fall of the Berlin Wall It also reveals how since then some of the most controversial and inconsistent episodes of post Cold War US foreign policy in Africa have been deeply rooted in the unique process whereby American rivalry with the USSR found its end in the continent The book challenges the traditional narrative by presenting an original perspective on the study of the end of the Cold War and provides new insights into the shaping of US foreign policy during the so called unipolar moment This book will be of much interest to students of Cold War history US foreign policy African politics and international relations

Security, Economics and Nuclear Non-Proliferation Morality Liang Tuang Nah,2017-09-04 This book seeks to elucidate the decisions of states that have chosen to acquire nuclear arms or inherited nuclear arsenals and have either disarmed or elected to retain their warheads It examines nuclear arms policy via an interconnected framework involving the eclectic use of national security based realism economic interdependence liberalism and nuclear weapons norms or morality based constructivism Through the various chapters examining the nuclear munitions decisions of South Africa Ukraine and North Korea a case is built that a state's leadership decides whether to keep or give up the Bomb based on interlinked security economic and norms governed motivations Thereafter frameworks evaluating the likelihood of nuclear proliferation and accessing the feasibility of disarmament are then applied to North Korea and used to examine recent Iranian nuclear negotiability This book is an invaluable resource for international relations and security studies scholars WMD analysts and post graduate or undergraduate candidates focusing on nuclear arms politics related courses

Seeking the Bomb Vipin Narang, 2022-01-11 The first systematic look at the different strategies that states employ in their pursuit of nuclear weapons Much of the work on nuclear proliferation has focused on why states pursue nuclear weapons The question of how states pursue nuclear weapons has received little attention Seeking the Bomb is the first book to analyze this topic by examining which strategies of nuclear proliferation are available to aspirants why aspirants select one strategy over another and how this matters to international politics Looking at a wide range of nations from India and Japan to the Soviet Union and North Korea to Iraq and Iran Vipin Narang develops an original typology of proliferation strategies hedging sprinting sheltered pursuit and hiding Each strategy of proliferation provides different opportunities for the development of nuclear weapons while at the same time presenting distinct vulnerabilities that can be exploited to prevent states from doing so Narang delves into the crucial implications these strategies have for nuclear proliferation and international security Hiders for example are especially disruptive since either they successfully attain nuclear weapons irrevocably altering the global power structure or they are discovered potentially triggering serious crises or war as external powers try to halt or reverse a previously clandestine nuclear weapons program As the international community confronts the next generation of potential nuclear proliferators Seeking the Bomb explores how global conflict and stability are shaped by the ruthlessly pragmatic ways states choose strategies of proliferation

Defensive Restructuring of the Armed Forces in Southern Africa Bjørn Møller, Gavin Cawthra, 2019-01-15 Published in 1997 the work explores the reorientation of security policies and the accompanying restructuring of the armed forces going on in Southern Africa under entirely new circumstances Democracy has come to South Africa the civil wars in Angola and Mozambique have ended and the region is establishing a regional framework for cooperation While covering the entire region a special focus is placed on South Africa which is predestined to play a leading role but which is struggling with the legacy of the apartheid regime and its repeated aggressions against neighbouring states A defensive restructuring of the South African of the South African military is an element in the building of mutual trust The implications of such defensive restructuring to a non offensive defence are described in detail In addition to the analytical contribution the work also contains central documents and a bibliography Understanding Deterrence Keith B. Payne, 2014-06-11 For decades the rational actor model served as the preferred guide for U S deterrence policy It has been a convenient and comforting guide because it requires little detailed knowledge of an opponent s unique decision making process and yet typically provides confident generalizations about how deterrence works The model tends to postulate common decision making parameters across the globe to reach generalizations about how deterrence will function and the types of forces that will be stabilizing or destabilizing Yet a broad spectrum of unique factors can influence an opponent s perceptions and his calculations and these are not easily captured by the rational actor model The absence of uniformity means there can be very few deterrence generalizations generated by the use of the rational actor model that are applicable to the entire range of opponents Understanding Deterrence considers how factors such as psychology history religion ideology geography political structure culture proliferation and geopolitics can shape a leadership s decision making process in ways that are specific and unique to each opponent Understanding Deterrence demonstrates how using a multidisciplinary approach to deterrence analysis can better identify and assess factors that influence an opponent s decision making process This identification and assessment process can facilitate the tailoring of deterrence strategies to specific purposes and result in a higher likelihood of success than strategies guided by the generalizations about opponent decision making typically contained in the rational actor model This book was published as a special issue of Comparative Strategy National Space Legislation in Europe Frans G. von der Dunk, 2011-09-09 The increasing involvement of private enterprise in the conduct of space activities raises key issues with respect to international space law which has left it to national law to implement relevant rules vis vis private enterprise Almost unavoidably such national implementation regimes differ largely across individual states This is also true in Europe where the issue is further compounded by the fundamental but fundamentally different roles of ESA and the European Union Focusing on Europe the present book thus represents the first comprehensive effort to discuss national authorisation schemes not country by country but theme by theme so as to allow for a real comparison of the lack of harmonisation or even coordination and the possible problems which may result Democratic South Africa's Foreign Policy Suzanne Graham, 2016-10-06 This book provides readers with the first comprehensive study of South Africa s foreign policy conducted in a multilateral setting by placing on record over 1000 of South Africa s votes at the United Nations over a 20 year period The study investigates consistency in terms of South Africa s declared foreign policy and its actual voting practices at the United Nations Democratic South Africa s Foreign Policy Voting Behaviour in the United Nations offers a compendium of South Africa s United Nations behaviour during a poignant transitional period in the country s recent history In setting out a framework for analysing the conduct of other countries voting behaviour in parallel with this study it can be used to advance the field as a useful comparative tool This book presents the material needed for International Relations scholars and practitioners in the field to make a reasoned and reflective assessment of this dimension of South Africa s foreign policy Space Policy in Developing Countries Robert C. Harding, 2013 This book analyses the rationale and history of space programs in countries of the developing world Space was at one time the sole domain of the wealthiest developed countries However the last couple of decades of the twentieth century and the first decade of the twenty first century have witnessed the number of countries with state supported space programs blossom Today no less than twenty five developing states including the rapidly emerging economic powers of Brazil seventh largest China second largest and India fourth largest possess active national space programs with already proven independent launch capability or concrete plans to achieve it soon This work places these programs within the context of international relations theory and foreign policy analysis The author categorizes each space program into tiers of development based not only on the level of technology utilised but on how each fits within the country's overall national security and or development policies The text also places these programs into an historical context which enables the author to demonstrate the logical thread of continuity in the political rationale for space capabilities generally This book will be of much interest to students of space power and politics development studies strategic studies and international relations in general

Slaying the Nuclear Dragon Tanya Ogilvie-White, David Santoro, 2012-03-01 In recent decades the debate on nuclear weapons has focused overwhelmingly on proliferation and nonproliferation dynamics In a series of Wall Street Journal articles however George Shultz William Perry Henry Kissinger and Sam Nunn called on governments to rid the world of nuclear weapons helping to put disarmament back into international security discussions More recently U S president Barack Obama prominent U S congressional members of both political parties and a number of influential foreign leaders have espoused the idea of a world free of nuclear weapons Turning this vision into reality requires an understanding of the forces driving disarmament forward and those holding it back Slaying the Nuclear Dragon provides in depth objective analysis of current nuclear disarmament dynamics Examining the political state level factors that drive and stall progress contributors highlight the challenges and opportunities faced by proponents of disarmament These essays show that although conditions are favorable for significant reductions numerous hurdles still exist Contributors look at three categories of states those that generate momentum for disarmament those with policies that are problematic for disarmament and those that actively hinder progress whether openly secretly deliberately or inadvertently Nuclear deterrence was long credited with preventing war between the two major Cold War powers but with the spread of nuclear technology threats have shifted to other state powers and to nonstate groups Slaying the Nuclear Dragon addresses an urgent need to examine nuclear disarmament in a realistic nonideological manner
