Six Poets from the Mountain South John Lang, 2010-04-20 In the most extensive work to date on major poets from the mountain South, John Lang takes as his point of departure an oft-quoted remark by Jim Wayne Miller: "Appalachian literature is and has always been as decidedly worldly, secular, and profane in its outlook as the region's traditional religion appears to be spiritual and otherworldly." Although this statement may be accurate for Miller's own poetry and fiction, Lang maintains that it does not do justice to the pervasive religious and spiritual concerns of many of the mountain South's finest writers, including the five other leading poets whose work he analyzes along with Miller's: Fred Chappell, Robert Morgan, Jeff Daniel Marion, Kathryn Stripling Byer, and Charles Wright. Lang demonstrates all write poetry that explores, sometimes with widely varying results, what they see as the undeniable presence of the divine within the temporal world. Like Blake and Emerson before them, these poets find the supernatural within nature rather than beyond it. They all exhibit a love of place; in their poems, a strong sense of connection to nature and the land, especially the mountains. Yet while their affirmation of the world before them suggests a resistance to the otherworldliness that Miller points to, their poetry is nonetheless permeated with spiritual questing. Dante strongly influences both Chappell and Wright, though the latter eventually resigns himself to being simply a God-fearing agnostic, whereas Chappell follows Dante in celebrating the love that moves the sun and other stars. Byer, probably the least orthodox of these poets, chooses to lay up treasures on earth, rejecting the transcendent in favor of a Native American spirituality of immanence, while Morgan and Marion find in nature what Marion calls a vocabulary of wonders akin to Emerson's conviction that nature is the language of the spiritual. Employing close readings of the poets' work and relating it to British and American Romanticism as well as contemporary eco-theology and eco-criticism, Lang's book is the most ambitious and searching foray yet into the worlds of these renowned post-World War II Appalachian poets.

The Lever of Riches Joel Mokyr, 1992-04-09 In a world of supercomputers genetic engineering and fiber optics technological creativity is ever more the key to economic success But why are some nations more creative than others and why do some highly innovative societies such as ancient China or Britain in the industrial revolution pass into stagnation Beginning with a fascinating concise history of technological progress Mokyr sets the background for his analysis by tracing the major inventions and innovations that have transformed society since ancient Greece and Rome What emerges from this survey is often surprising the classical world for instance was largely barren of new technology the relatively backward society of medieval Europe bristled with inventions and the period between the Reformation and the Industrial Revolution was one of slow and unspectacular progress in technology despite the tumultuous developments associated with the Voyages of Discovery and the Scientific Revolution What were the causes of technological creativity Mokyr distinguishes between the relationship of inventors and their physical environment which determined their willingness to challenge nature and the social environment which determined the openness to new ideas He discusses a long list of such factors showing how they interact to help or hinder a nation's creativity and then illustrates them by a number of detailed comparative studies examining the differences between Europe and China between classical antiquity and medieval Europe and between Britain and the rest of Europe during the industrial revolution He examines such aspects as the role of the state the Chinese gave up a millennium wide lead in shipping to the Europeans for example when an Emperor banned large ocean going vessels the impact of science as well as religion politics and even nutrition He questions the importance of such commonly cited factors as the spill over benefits of war the abundance of natural resources life expectancy and labor costs Today an ever greater number of industrial economies are competing in the global market locked in a struggle that revolves around technological ingenuity The Lever of Riches with its keen analysis derived from a sweeping survey of creativity throughout history offers telling insights into the question of how Western economies can maintain and developing nations can unlock their creative potential

Dixie Limited Joseph R. Millichap, 2014-10-17 In the South railroads have two meanings they are an economic force that can sustain a town and they are a metaphor for the process of southern industrialization Recognizing this duality Joseph Millichap s Dixie Limited is a detailed reading of the complex and often ambivalent relationships among technology culture and literature that railroads represent in selected writers and works of the Southern Renaissance Tackling such Southern Renaissance giants as Thomas Wolfe Eudora Welty Robert Penn Warren and William Faulkner Millichap mingles traditional American and Southern studies in their emphases on literary appreciation and evaluation in terms of national and regional concerns with contemporary cultural meaning in terms of gender race and class Millichap juxtaposes Faulkner s semi autobiographical families with Wolfe s fiction which represents changing attitudes toward the Southern Other Faulkner's later fiction is compared to that of Warren Welty and Ellison and Warren's later poetry moves toward the contemporary post Southernism of Dave Smith These disparate examples suggest the subject of the final chapter the continuing search for post Southern patterns of persistence and change that reiterate reject and perhaps reconfigure the Southern Renaissance As we enter the twenty first century that we recall how much the twentieth century South was shaped by railroads built in the nineteenth century It is also important that we recognize how much our future will be determined by the technological and cultural tracks we lay Callaloo, 1986 Some special issues devoted to the literatures of other minorities
