Undergraduate Mathematics for the Life Sciences Glenn Ledder, Jenna P. Carpenter, Timothy D. Comar, 2013 There is a gap between the extensive mathematics background that is beneficial to biologists and the minimal mathematics background biology students acquire in their courses The result is an undergraduate education in biology with very little quantitative content New mathematics courses must be devised with the needs of biology students in mind In this volume authors from a variety of institutions address some of the problems involved in reforming mathematics curricula for biology students The problems are sorted into three themes Models Processes and Directions It is difficult for mathematicians to generate curriculum ideas for the training of biologists so a number of the curriculum models that have been introduced at various institutions comprise the Models section Processes deals with taking that great course and making sure it is institutionalized in both the biology department as a requirement and in the mathematics department as a course that will live on even if the creator of the course is no longer on the faculty Directions looks to the future with each paper laying out a case for pedagogical developments that the authors would like to see Current Practices in Quantitative Literacy Rick Gillman, 2006 Presents a wide sampling of efforts being made on campuses across the country to achieve our common goal of having a quantitatively literate citizenry Research in Collegiate Mathematics Education IV Ed Dubinsky, 2000 This fourth volume of Research in Collegiate Mathematics Education RCME IV reflects the themes of student learning and calculus Included are overviews of calculus reform in France and in the U S and large scale and small scale longitudinal comparisons of students enrolled in first year reform courses and in traditional courses The work continues with detailed studies relating students understanding of calculus and associated topics Direct focus is then placed on instruction and student comprehension of courses other than calculus namely abstract algebra and number theory The volume concludes with a study of a concept that overlaps the areas of focus quantifiers The book clearly reflects the trend towards a growing community of researchers who systematically gather and distill data regarding collegiate mathematics teaching and learning This series is published in cooperation with the Mathematical Association of America Writing in the Teaching and Learning of Mathematics John Meier, Thomas Rishel, 1998-09-17 This book examines the hows and whys of writing in mathematics Advanced Educational Technologies for Mathematics and Science David L. Ferguson, 2013-04-17 This book is the outgrowth of a NATO Advanced Research Workshop held in Milton Keynes United Kingdom in the summer of

1990 The workshop brought together about 30 world leaders in the use of advanced technologies in the teaching of mathematics and science Many of these participants commented that the workshop was one of the more productive and exciting workshops that they had attended It was not uncommon to see participants engaged in informal discussion far into the evenings and early mornings long after formal sessions had ended It is my hope that this book captures the substance and excitement of many of the ideas that were presented at the workshop Indeed the process by which this book has come about has given every opportunity for the best thinking to get reflected here Participants wrote papers prior to the workshop After the workshop participants revised the papers at least once In a few instances three versions of papers were written Some participants could not resist the urge to incorporate descriptions of some of the newer developments in their projects The papers in this book demonstrate how technology is impacting our view of what should be taught what can be taught and how we should go about teaching in the various disciplines As such they offer great insight into the central issues of teaching and learning in a wide range of disciplines and across many grade levels ranging from elementary school through undergraduate college education Project Impact - Disseminating Innovation in Undergraduate Education Ann McNeal, 1998-02 Contains abstracts of innovative projects designed to improve undergraduate education in science mathematics engineering and technology Descriptions are organized by discipline and include projects in astronomy biology chemistry computer science engineering geological sciences mathematics physics and social sciences as well as a selection of interdisciplinary projects Each abstract includes a description of the project published and other instructional materials additional products of the project and information on the principal investigator and participating institutions
