The Museum Of Appalachia Story:

The Unlikely Story of the Museum of Appalachia and How It Came to Be John Rice Irwin, 2012 The life story of John Rice Irwin a man of myriad interests who somewhat by chance started collecting memorabilia from his Southern Appalachian culture The gathering of these cherished relics tied to his colorful and beloved kin and acquaintances became a passion He acquired an authentic log structure to display these artifacts and this collection grew into a museum of international note Over 140 vivid photos help tell the story From boyhood days on the farm through his adult years John Rice Irwin s life is inextricably entwined with the founding and development of the Museum of Appalachia The Museum of Appalachia Story John Rice Irwin, 1987

Public Space and the Ideology of Place in American Culture, 2009-01-01 We typically take public space for granted as if it has continuously been there yet public space has always been the expression of the will of some agency person or institution who names the space gives it purpose and monitors its existence And often its use has been contested These new essays written for this volume approach public space through several key questions Who has the right to define public space How do such places generate and sustain symbolic meaning Is public space unchanging or is it subject to our subjective perception Do we given the public nature of public space have the right to subvert it These eighteen essays including several case studies offer convincing evidence of a spatial turn in American studies They argue for a re visioning of American culture as a history of place making and the instantiation of meaning in structures boundaries and spatial configurations Chronologically the subjects range from Pierre L Enfant s initial majestic conceptualization of Washington D C to the post modern realization that public space in the U S is increasingly a matter of waste Topics range from parks to cities to small towns from open air museums to airports encompassing the commercial marketing of place as well as the subversion and re possession of public space by the disenfranchised Ultimately public space is variously imagined as the site of social and political contestation and of aesthetic change
