Small Gains:

Making It All Work John Schultz, 2010-09-13 This book explains how to organize and manage modifications during the solution realization phase of problem solving so improvements become the new way of life. The nine steps detailed in the book's chapters, although applied to solution implementation, can be used on their own to manage many types of system modification. These transition activities are framed in a three-stage model first proposed by Kurt Lewin, the father of change theory. It packages a strategy for sustaining improvements that is easy to understand and apply: unfreeze, change, and refreeze. Fundamental organizational performance techniques are introduced during each step to assist in managing the transformation from idea to integrated solution. These practices are not new or revolutionary but often overlooked while team members focus on statistical and analytical means. The described methods have a decidedly human focus and are meant to supplement the familiar diagnostic tools associated with six sigma and process improvement projects.

Choice, Decision, and Measurement A.A.J. Marley, 2019-05-23 This volume is the result of a conference held at the University of California Irvine on the topics that provide its title: choice, decision, and measurement. The conference was planned and the volume prepared in honor of Professor R. Duncan Luce on his 70th birthday. Following a short autobiographical statement by Luce, the volume is organized into four topics to each of which Luce has made significant contributions. The book provides an overview of current issues in each area and presents some of the best recent theoretical and empirical work. Personal reflections on Luce and his work begin each section. These reflections were written by outstanding senior researchers: Peter Fishburn (Preference and Decision Making), Patrick Suppes (Measurement Theory and Axiomatic Systems), William J. McGill (Psychophysics and Reaction Time), and W. K. Estes (Choice Identification and Categorization). The first section presents recent theoretical and empirical work on descriptive models of decision making and theoretical results on general probabilistic models of choice and ranking. Luce's recent theoretical and empirical work on rank and sign dependent utility theory is important in many of these contributions. The second section presents results from psychophysics: probabilistic measurement, aggregation of expert opinion, and test theory. The third section presents various process-oriented models with supportive data for tasks such as redundant signal detection, forced choice, and absolute identification. The final section contains theory and data on categorization and attention and general theoretical results for developing and testing models in these domains.

Goldberg, this book builds upon the classic by Victor Wilson and Geoffrey Melville Jones, published over 25 years ago, and takes a fresh new look at the vestibular system and the revolutionary advances that have been made in the field.

Behavioural Science and Housing Decision Making

Helen Bao, 2020-02-25. This book takes a behavioural approach to examine six important housing questions: tenure decision, gentrification, place attachment, housing bubbles, housing wealth, and residential satisfaction. Using experimental and field data, the book demonstrates the effects of six behavioural biases and heuristics: i.e. anchoring and reference dependence, loss aversion, mental accounting, endowment effect, herd behaviours, and social comparison on these housing decisions. The first part of the book introduces the questions and provides a behavioural science toolbox; before the second part adopts a real world case study approach. Real data sets and suggested answers are provided, and the cases come from the UK, USA, and China. Background information is given in each case to facilitate the understanding of the case data and question, as well as the discussions on the results. This book is ideal supplementary reading on a variety of courses such as housing studies, economics, real estate, research methods, and for students and academics who are interested in the application of behavioural science in housing decisions.
