Sociology Of Aging A Social Problems Perspective:

The Sociology of Aging Duane A. Matcha, 1997 Using a sociological perspective book examines how aging is a social construct rather than a specific chronological age or set of conditions KEYTOPICS Covers all facets of aging and how aging is a consequence of various social structural factors rather than a cause Sociology of Aging Duane A. Matcha, 2009-02 MySearchLab provides students with a complete understanding of the research process so they can complete research projects confidently and efficiently Students and instructors with an internet connection can visit www.MySearchLab.com and receive immediate access to thousands of full articles from the EBSCO ContentSelect database In addition MySearchLab offers extensive content on the research process itself including tips on how to navigate and maximize time in the campus library a step by step guide on writing a research paper and instructions on how to finish an academic assignment with endnotes and bibliography Using a sociological perspective book examines how aging is a social construct rather than a specific chronological age or set of conditions Covers all facets of aging and how aging is a consequence of various social structural factors rather than a cause Investigating Social Problems A. Javier Trevino, 2024-05-16 General Editor A Javier Trevino working with a panel of experts thoroughly examines all aspects of social problems providing a contemporary and authoritative introduction to the field Each chapter is written by a specialist on that particular topic This unique contributed format ensures that the research examples and theories described are the most current and relevant available The text is framed around three major themes intersectionality the interplay of race ethnicity class and gender the global scope of many problems and how researchers take an evidence based approach to studying problems Perspectives on the Future of the Sociology of Aging Panel on New Directions in Social Demography, Social Epidemiology, and the Sociology of Aging, Committee on Population, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, National Research Council, 2013-02-14 The population of the United States is growing inexorably older With birth rates historically low and life expectancy continuing to rise the age distribution of the population in the United States is growing steadily older This demographic shift is occurring at a time of major economic and social changes which have important implications for the growing elderly population Other changes such as the move away from defined benefit toward defined contribution retirement plans changes in some corporate and municipal pension plans as a result of market pressures and the 2008 financial crisis precipitated by the crash of the housing market all have economic implications for older people They are also likely to make it more difficult for certain groups of future retirees to find their retirements at the level that they had planned and would like To deal effectively with the challenges created by population aging it is vital to first understand these demographic economic and social changes and to the extent possible their causes consequences and implications Sociology offers a knowledge base a number of useful analytic approaches and tools and unique theoretical perspectives that can be important aids to this task The Panel on New Directions in Social Demography Social Epidemiology and the Sociology of Aging was established in August 2010 under the auspices of the Committee on Population of the National Research Council to prepare a report that evaluates the recent contributions of social demography social epidemiology and sociology to the study of aging and seeks to identify promising new research in these fields Perspectives on the Future of the Sociology of Aging provides candid and critical comments that will assist the institution in making the final published volume as sound as possible and to ensure that the volume meets institutional standards for objectivity evidence and responsiveness to the study charge
