

Boris N. Mironov: Istoricheskaja sotsiologija Rossii. Sankt-Peterburg: Intersocis, 2009. 536 pp.

Historical sociology practically disappeared in Russia during the Soviet period when the official philosophical doctrine of historical materialism was absolutely predominant. While there were some discussions of the relationship between historical materialism and sociology, the leading role of Soviet Marxism could not be questioned. During the perestroika period ideological restrictions were gradually abolished. Nevertheless, the process of institutionalization of Russian historical sociology proved to be rather slow. In any case social history was in a better position than historical sociology in Soviet times. So it is not surprising that the growth of interest in historical sociology in the first post-Soviet years could be seen first of all among historians. Some of them began to employ sociological approaches in a more consistent manner in the 1990s.

Boris Mironov is the author of the two-volume book on social history of Russia covering the period from the beginning of the 18th to the early 20th century. The first Russian edition of that work was published in 1999. Soon after that it was translated into English under the title The social history of imperial Russia, 1700–1917 (2000). The book was discussed widely by historians both in Russia and abroad. Thus, a considerable part of an issue of Slavic Review (Vol. 60, no. 3, Fall 2001) was devoted to discussion of Mironov's study. Most reviewers emphasized the impressive achievement of its author who offered a comprehensive interpretation of Russian history of the imperial period.

Mironov's new work Istoricheskaja sotsiologija Rossii (Historical Sociology of Russia) is a text-book which is largely based on his previous historical study. However, it is presented as a book on historical sociology. In fact, the author focuses on theoretical problems of historical sociology mainly in introduction and the final chapter which is titled 'Russia and the West: Sociological Images and Historical reality'. In the present review special attention is devoted to these more theoretical statements.

On the whole Mironov discusses a wide range of issues. These include territorial expansion of the Russian state and ethnic relations, changes in social structure and patterns of social mobility, urbanization, demographic changes, transformation of the family, serfdom and the peasant commune, evolution of the political institutions and formation of civil society. Mironov focuses on the processes of modernization in imperial Russia. In his view, the essence of modernization consisted in the growth of individual autonomy and also autonomy of the nuclear family, transformation of the estates into professional groups and classes and, finally, evolution of the state based on law.

Mironov offers a detailed analysis of the formation of different estates in Russia in the 18th century. He argues that the estates were at the same time real social strata and imagined communities. In discussion of changes in the social structure of Russian society since 1860s Mironov concentrates on gradual diminution of the differences between the estates. However, transformation of estates into classes was not finished by 1917. The estate paradigm was preserved in real life as well as in the mentality of various social groups. As Mironov argues, the existence of estates was an obstacle to the growth of the Russian nation with a common culture, common values and laws (p. 93).
