   The Aspen Institute Guide to Socially Responsible MBA Programs: 2008-2009 The Aspen Institute,2008-06-23 The Aspen Institute a premier non profit research organization for corporate social responsibility offers the first comprehensive guide to the world s leading global MBA programs in CSR an indispensable guide for prospective students universities hiring companies and libraries This guide provides an overview of how global MBA programs bring social impact management into their curricular and extracurricular programs Social impact management which includes environmental ethical and corporate governance issues is the field of inquiry at the intersection of business needs and wider societal concerns that reflects their complex interdependency Without an understanding of this interdependency neither business nor the society in which it operates can thrive Each year business schools from around the world strive to differentiate themselves and attract the best and the brightest future business leaders while prospective MBAs are looking for a program that will provide effective management skills to succeed in the changing face of business The bottom line is no longer exclusively dedicated to financial returns Rather business leaders must also consider the environmental and social impacts of their decisions in order to compete in today s marketplace The MBA schools that participate in the Aspen Institute s survey and are therefore highlighted in the Aspen Institute Guide for Socially Responsible MBA Programs 2008 2009 are leaders in integrating these issues into their MBA curricula   Computers, the Non-technological (human) Factors John L. Baber,1987 Every engineering field is founded on a body of fundamental scientific and mathematical principles providing a basis for the design process and enabling designers to systematically validate the major characteristics of a proposed system In recent years computing science has generated a similar body of principles allowing software engineers to design error free programs This book presents this core of knowledge The concepts covered are based on the view that a variable is a triple of a name a set and an element of that set a value that a data environment the execution of a program is a sequence of variables and that a statement subprogram or program serves to map a data environment into another data environment While the material is treated in a mathematically rigorous fashion it is carefully written to show software developers how to apply theory to practical design tasks
