Alencar, 2004-02-24 Advances in networking technology have revitalized the investigation of agent technology as a promising paradigm for engineering complex distributed software systems Agent technology has been applied to a wide range of application mains including e commerce human computer interfaces telecommunications and software assistants Multi agent systems MASs and their underlying theories provide a more natural support for ensuring important properties such as autonomy mobility environment heterogeneity organization openness and intelligence As a consequence agent based systems are likely to provide new proaches to dealing with the complexity of developing and maintaining modern software However developing robust large scale agent based systems will quire new software engineering approaches There are currently many methods and techniques for working with individual agents or with systems built using only a few agents Unfortunately agent based software engineering is still in its infancy and existing software engineering approaches are unable to cope with large MASs The complexity associated with a large MAS is considerable When a huge number of agents interact over heterogeneous environments various phenomena occur which are not as easy to capture as when only a few agents are working together As the multiple software agents are highly collaborative and operate in networked environments they have to be context aware and deal with vironment uncertainty This makes their coordination and management more difficult and increases the likelihood of exceptional situations such as security holes privacy violations and unexpected global effects Moreover as users and software engineers delegate more autonomy to their MASs and put more trust in their results new concerns arise in real life applications      Engineering Education John Heywood,2006-01-24 A synthesis of nearly 2 000 articles to help make engineers better educators While a significant body of knowledge has evolved in the field of engineering education over the years much of the published information has been restricted to scholarly journals and has not found a broad audience This publication rectifies that situation by reviewing the findings of nearly 2 000 scholarly articles to help engineers become better educators devise more effective curricula and be more effective leaders and advocates in curriculum and research development The author s first objective is to provide an illustrative review of research and development in engineering education since 1960 His second objective is with the examples given to encourage the practice of classroom assessment and research and his third objective is to promote the idea of curriculum leadership The publication is divided into four main parts Part I demonstrates how the underpinnings of education history philosophy psychology sociology determine the aims and objectives of the curriculum and the curriculum s internal structure which integrates assessment content teaching and learning Part II focuses on the curriculum itself considering such key issues as content organization trends and change A chapter on interdisciplinary and integrated study and a chapter on project and problem based models of curriculum are included Part III examines problem solving creativity and design Part IV delves into teaching assessment and evaluation beginning with a chapter on the lecture cooperative learning and teamwork The book ends with a brief insightful forecast of the future of engineering education Because this is a practical tool and reference for engineers each chapter is self contained and may be read independently of the others Unlike other works in engineering education which are generally intended for educational researchers this publication is written not only for researchers in the field of engineering education but also for all engineers who teach All readers acquire a host of practical skills and knowledge in the fields of learning philosophy sociology and history as they specifically apply to the process of engineering curriculum improvement and evaluation      Scientific and Technical Aerospace Reports ,1990      Proceedings - Compcon ,1981
