Technology Learning And Innovation Experiences Of Newly Industrializing Economies:

Technology, Learning, and Innovation Linsu Kim, Richard R. Nelson, 2000-07-24 In this volume published in 2000 leading scholars analyze in a series of essays and commentaries how newly industrializing countries NICs particularly those in East Asia have transformed themselves from technologically backward and poor to relatively modern and affluent economies over the past thirty years The contributors provide interesting theoretical perspectives and offer insights into the process of technological progress at both the macro and micro levels in these countries The essays review how firms particularly those in electronics and automobiles have dynamically accumulated technological capabilities at the micro level how public policies have shaped the process of technological progress at the national level and what problems some of these countries face today at both levels In addition the volume provides a comparison of East Asian NIC s with their Latin American counterparts The discussion also offers useful lessons for policies in other developing countries

The Challenges of Technology and Economic Catch-up in Emerging Economies

Jeong-Dong Lee, Keun Lee, Dirk Meissner, Slavo Radosevic, Nicholas Vonortas, 2021-06-24 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 International licence It is free to read at Oxford Scholarship Online and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations Innovation is a pivotal driving force behind economic growth Technological capability deepens and diversifies industrial activity which fundamentally enhances growth potential Consequently failure to build effective technological capability can lead to slow long term economic growth This book synthesizes and interprets existing knowledge on technology upgrading failures in order to better understand the challenges of technology upgrading in emerging economies The objective is to bring together diverse evidence on three major dimensions of technology upgrading paths of technology upgrading structural changes in the nature of technology upgrading and the issues of technology transfer and technology upgrading Knowledge on these three dimensions is synthesized at the firm sector and macro levels across different countries and world macroregions Compared to the challenges and uncertainties facing emerging economies our understanding of technology upgrading is sparse unsystematic and scattered The recent growth slowdown in many emerging economies often known as the middle income trap has reinforced the importance of understanding the technology upgrading challenges they experience While our understanding of these issues from the 1980s and 1990s is relatively more systematised the more recent changes that took place during the globalization and proliferation of global value chains and the effects of the 2008 financial crisis have not been explored and compared synthetically The current effects of COVID 19 geopolitical struggles and the growing concern around environmental sustainability add significant complexity to an already problematic situation The time is ripe to take stock of our existing knowledge on processes of technology upgrading in emerging economies and make further inroads in research on this crucial issue

Strategic Coupling Henry Wai-chung Yeung, 2016-04-22 In Strategic Coupling Henry Wai chung Yeung examines economic development and state firm relations in East Asia focusing in particular on South Korea Taiwan and Singapore As a result of the massive changes of the last twenty five years new explanations must be found for the economic success and industrial transformation in the region State assisted startups and incubator firms in East Asia have become major players in the manufacture of products with a global reach Taiwan s Hon Hai Precision has assembled more than 500 million iPhones for instance and South Korea s Samsung provides the iPhone s semiconductor chips and retina displays Drawing on extensive interviews with top executives and senior government officials Yeung argues that since the late 1980s many East Asian firms have outgrown their home states and are no longer dependent on state support as a result the developmental state has lost much of its capacity to steer and direct industrialization We cannot read the performance of national firms as a direct outcome of state action Yeung calls for a thorough renovation of the still dominant view that states are the primary engine of industrial transformation He stresses action by national firms and traces various global production networks to incorporate both firm specific activities and the international political economy He identifies two sets of dynamics in these national global articulations known as strategic coupling coevolution in the confluence of state firm and global production networks and the various strategies pursued by East Asian firms to attain competitive positions in the global marketplace

Innovative China Development Research Center of the State Council, World Bank Group, 2020-01-13 After more than three decades of average annual growth close to 10 percent China's economy is transitioning to a new normal of slower but more balanced and sustainable growth Its old drivers of growth a growing labor force the migration from rural areas to cities high levels of investments and expanding exports are waning or having less impact China's policymakers are well aware that the country needs new drivers of growth This report proposes a reform agenda that emphasizes productivity and innovation to help policymakers promote China's future growth and achieve their vision of a modern and innovative China The reform agenda is based on the three D's removing Distortions to strengthen market competition and enhance the efficient allocation of resources in the economy accelerating Diffusion of advanced technologies and management practices in China's economy taking advantage of the large remaining potential for catch up growth and fostering Discovery and nurturing China's competitive and innovative capacity as China approaches OECD incomes in the decades ahead and extends the global innovation and technology frontier

Routledge Handbook of Southeast Asian Politics Richard Robison, 2012-03-12 Now available in paperback this Handbook provides a comprehensive analysis of the major themes that have defined the politics of Southeast Asia It provides a comprehensive and cutting edge examination of this important subject The introductory chapter provides an overview of the theoretical and ideological themes that have dominated the study of the region's politics and presents the different ways the complex politics of the region have been understood The contributions by leading scholars in the field cover a range of broad questions about the dynamics of politics The Handbook analyses how the dominant political and social coalitions of the region were forged in the Cold War era and assesses the complex processes of transition towards various forms of democratic politics How institutions and systems of governance are being forged in an increasingly global environment is discussed and whether civil society in Southeast Asia has really evolved as an independent sphere of social and political activity The Handbook examines how national governments are dealing with growing tensions within the region as matters such as labour human rights and the environment spill beyond national boundaries and how they are establishing a place in the new global framework By engaging the Southeast Asian experience more firmly with larger debates about modern political systems the Handbook is an essential reference tool for students and scholars of Political Science and Southeast Asian studies Economic Development, Education and Transnational Corporations Mark Hanson, 2007-08-09 This book focuses on the questions of why do some economically disadvantaged nations develop significantly faster than others and what roles do their educational systems play In the early 1960s Mexico and South Korea were both equally underdeveloped agrarian societies Since that time the development strategies pursued by each country resulted
