Structural Adjustment And The African Farmer:

Structural Adjustment and the African Farmer Alex Duncan, 1992 Structural Adjustment and the African Farmer : Edited by Alex Duncan : Edited by John Howell , 1990 Structural Adjustment & the African Farmer Alex Duncan, John Howell, 1992 This book traces the impact of structural adjustment policies upon the incomes and welfare of Africa's peasant farmers who currently operate at very low levels of productivity of both land and labour and are confronted with low household income and inadequate food security A common method has been applied across five countries Analyses have been made of the links between national economic policies and the various markets in which the smallholders operate and the services and infrastructures which influence their productive capacities There are differences in the resource base and the level of ecological deterioration in export opportunities in physical infrastructure and in particular in the depth and nature of economic policy reforms The team have recognised the important differences between these five countries and overcome the formidable problems of collecting agricultural data in Africa The book provides firm evidence of the impact both positive and negative of structural adjustment The editors argue for a more targeted project specific approach to small farmer development This complements the current donor interest in policy related aid support Structural Adjustment and Agriculture Sreenivasan Subramanian, Elisabeth Sadoulet, Alain De Janvry, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1994-01-01 Adjustment and Agriculture in Africa J. Clapp, 1997-03-05 With the adoption of a World Bank sponsored structural adjustment programme in the mid 1980s Guinea underwent a dramatic change in its economic and agricultural policies The country's experience over the past decade illustrates some of the most pressing problems encountered by African countries pursuing economic reform This book analyses these difficulties by examining the adjustment experience in Guinea as it affected the country's overall political economy and the agricultural sector in particular It also places this case within the broader context of African adjustment Structural Adjustment and African Women Farmers Christina H. Gladwin, 1991 Africa's Changing Agricultural Development Strategies Christopher L. Delgado, 1995 Similarities and dominant paradigms Chronology and elements of the dominant paradigms of agricultural development Insights for paradigms of African Agricultural Development Agriculture, Autonomous Development, and Prospects for Industrialization in Africa Emmanuel Ndhlovu, 2025-03-06 The book investigates the intersection of agriculture and development in Africa and how it impacts rural industrialisation prospects It provides a comprehensive view of the position of agriculture in African socio economic activities and the agricultural sector's potential as the source for continental development and industrialisation prospects Significant research has been done on African development with a focus placed on the problematic role played by slavery colonialism and later by incompetent African leaders who failed to steer development of the type that delivers a progressive sustained and sustainable transformation of lives and societies There is limited focus on the possibility of agriculture being the potential basis of African development and the chance for industrialisation This is a matter of concern considering the dominance of agriculture as a livelihood and income source for many people on the continent In contributing to the debate on development in Africa this book aims to show how agriculture can serve as the basis for African development and industrialisation This will be achieved by i providing a detailed historical description of the position of agriculture in African socio economic activities ii outlining the trajectory of African development with a focus on agriculture innovation and mechanisation iii identifying challenges to the development of African agriculture iv exploring the opportunities for agricultural development in Africa and v providing practical and policy recommendations to improve African agriculture and make it the engine for development and industrialisation Utilising a multidisciplinary approach which combines political economy social policy financial inclusion and empowerment approaches the book also shows how engagement of youth and women digitalisation and the provision of support by public and private actors can jump start agriculture as the engine of African development and industrialisation Taken together with this conscious effort to promote a multi disciplinary discussion the book is valuable reading for students policymakers and activists interested in emerging new directions in African development thinking and research

Globalization and Autocentricity in Africa's Development in the 21st Century Kidane Mengisteab,1996 African economies are the most dependent and the most marginalised in the global system Prevailing policies to integrate these economies more closely with the global economy are in the view of many misplaced and this work presents a series of alternative strategies that will tap the energies of the African people to develop their own potential and reduce their dependence on World Bank IMF led approaches World Bank Anne C. M. Salda,1995
