The series will include handbooks on national strategies for sustainable development, local strategies assessing progress towards sustainability, biodiversity action plans involving indigenous peoples, and on integrating population and resource use planning and regular companion volumes of case studies addressing the key issues of concern to strategy implementation. Many international agreements and action plans now call for countries to undertake national strategies. These strategies seek to involve communities in united approaches to sustainable development. Some are sectoral, such as tropical forest strategies; others are thematic, covering topics such as biodiversity, education, or climate change. Still others, such as national conservation strategies and national environment action plans, are evolving to become more comprehensive processes drawing together economic, social, and environmental development actions. This handbook is for people involved in strategies. It draws on experiences in different regions of the world to present options and examples of the role of strategies in sustainable development. Originally published in 1995.
