Castello,2008 Based on the analysis of a specially compiled corpus of internationally recognized English as a foreign language EFL reading tests at different levels of proficiency this volume explores the relation between the complexity of written texts and the difficulty of reading comprehension tests It brings together linguistic investigations into the text inherent complexity of the tests and a study of the data derived from their administration to groups of Italian university students The study of text complexity draws on corpus linguistics text linguistics and systemic functional linguistics Both quantitative and qualitative analyses are carried out on the language used in the reading texts and in the related tasks that make up the corpus of tests The assessment of test difficulty on the other hand is informed by research on language testing and in particular by findings and methodologies of Classical Test Theory and Item Response Theory Relevant aspects of these theories are used to analyze and interpret both the data obtained from the administration of the tests and the data collected by means of feedback questionnaires completed by test takers The application of such diverse methodologies and the subsequent comparison of the results of the analyses has brought out interesting correlations between text inherent complexity perceived test difficulty and actual test difficulty Practice tests M. The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,2009 Gogaku Kenkyū ,1993 Utilising Fiction to Promote English Language Acquisition Suhair Al Alami,2013-07-29 The teaching of English in the United Arab Emirates is based upon the communicative approach and aims to enable EFL students to employ language skills for communication purposes as appropriate Personal experience and the author s colleagues observations however reveal that a number of EFL university students fail to achieve adequate communicative competence which in turn does not qualify them to exploit the foreign language of English as required by their curricula as well as by today s world Central to university education in the United Arab Emirates is critical thinking It seems reasonable then to assume that EFL university students are well equipped to tackle a reading text and to handle a writing task demonstrating through such activities an adequate repertoire of critical thinking skills Personal experience and the author s colleagues observations however indicate that this does not apply to a number of EFL university students studying in the country Seeking an effective remedy the author argues that utilising literature in the EFL classroom would be beneficial in terms of many essential aspects Based on a three year research project conducted at a private university in Dubai involving a number of EFL students the book concludes with some suggestions with regards to what criteria to adopt when utilising literary texts The current book as such is expected to be of use and interest to applied linguists as the study proposes an approach to integrating the teaching of language literature communication and critical thinking with the ultimate goal of promoting communicative competence and enhancing critical thinking on the part of EFL learners curricula designers since the study introduces a course for the enhancement of communicative competence and critical thinking and EFL instructors because the study offers instructional material which can be adopted or adapted when teaching EFL university students Bien se préparer aux épreuves de langues
