Did I Listen?

Listening often involves not understanding what is being said. We need to focus on the person who is talking and not be distracted by people or things that are going on around us.

When we are in a noisy place, we may not hear the speaker and the other person may not hear us. This could cause a lot of problems for the speaker and the listener.

The speaker needs to know what is being said and how often the speaker has finished speaking. They need to know when they are talking and when they are not. The listener and the speaker can check how well they have understood each other.

How can I listen better?

How Do You Know When You Are Being Listened To?

Think about a time when you felt that you were being listened to.

What did the person who was listening to you do that made you feel like that?

Remember that people who are not listening to you are not listening to you.

For example, the person listening might not look at you or not hear what you are saying.
