A Transnational History of Forced Migrants in Europe Bastiaan Willems, Michal Adam Palacz, 2022-08-11 This book is a vital exploration of the harrowing stories of mass displacement that took place in the first half of the 20th century from the perspective of forced migrants themselves The volume brings together 15 interrelated case studies which show how the deportation evacuation and flight of millions of people as a result of the First World War intensified rather than alleviated ethnic conflicts which culminated in population transfers on an even larger scale during and immediately after the Second World War While each chapter focuses on a different group of refugees and displaced persons the text as a whole looks at the experience of forced migration as a complex set of evolving relationships with the receiving society the homeland the broader diaspora and other migrant communities living within the same host country This innovative four dimensional model provides an overarching conceptual framework that binds the chapters together within the longer arc of European history By going beyond the conventional narratives of national victimhood and unsuccessful assimilation of refugees A Transnational History of Forced Migrants in Europe reveals that identities of forced migrants in the first half of the 20th century were individualised hybrid and constantly reconstructed in response to socioeconomic forces and political pressures The case studies collected in this volume further suggest that age gender social class educational level and the personal experiences of unwilling nomads are more important to the understanding of forced migration history than ethnoreligious identities of victims and perpetrators

Dziegielewski, 2015-06 There are certain questions that all students considering social work ask Who are social workers What is it that social workers do How is the social work profession changing What does it take to become a social worker Ira Colby and Sophia Dziegielewski bring their decades of experience in social work practice and education to answer these questions This engaging text gives readers a practical guide to the many ways in which social workers effect change in their communities and the world The authors offer an overview and history of the profession introduce readers to the practice of social work at the micro mezzo and macro level and finally look closely at the many settings and populations that social workers work with While realistically portraying the pressures and obstacles that social workers face Colby and Dziegielewski communicate their own passion for social work Ladies, Nonetheless Fran Hoyer, 2009-02-21 Ladies Nonetheless is a book written to fulfill a long standing promise When Deacon Fran Hoyer worked as Assistant Chaplain in federal prison the ladies would ask that she tell people that life for women in prison is not as traumatic as it is portrayed in the media Their concern is that some of their family members are frantic with worry Most of the women are mothers of young children who have nightmares picturing their mom in a dungeon So she promised Someday day Ill write a book about you and thats how this book came into existence The author begins by tracing the steps of how a suburban woman in her 60s became involved with women in prison After six years her ministry came to an abrupt halt as a result of 9 11 During this time though she met a wide variety of imprisoned women from all walks of life all of whom depended on her for spiritual counseling They ranged from homeless women who purposely committed minor crimes just enough to be housed in the prison for the winter months to a college professor who could never imagine her companion could be involved in illegal dealings Deacon Fran used notes from her journals articles written for church newsletters and memories to give the readers a glimpse of prison life We read of a woman giving birth in a cell women on suicide watch women frightened for their safety women taking control of their surroundings and most of all women interacting with women Some were high profile cases and others unknown to anyone other than their intimate families In advocating for the rights of these women the author points out the many abuses in the system It poses a social dilemma they have been placed there by our government for a perceived crime against society do they deserve to be treated with loving care or with disregard for personal comfort and safety Most of the women in this particular prison were not yet convicted they were waiting to be tried Its easy not to have compassion for the women as a group they probably broke the law and now have to pay the price or as the women put it you do the crime you serve the time But then one has the opportunity to pick out individuals just like the woman next door or in your church community and the compassion stirs within Maybe they should be treated with more respect given better living conditions allowed to keep their humanity This book then puts human faces on the women for those who will never have the opportunity to sit on a metal framed bunk bed in a cell and comfort a woman who has been abused by family society and life in general Many of these women come from troubled backgrounds neglected and abused by families and seeking affection from any source available Many have had minimal formal education at best and yet they survive Some have come from other cultures and have no idea of being responsible to the government for their behavior A Chinese woman was indignant that she was arrested for trying to earn money Its not the governments business what I sell or how much money I earn A Latino woman is confused I had to do what he said hes my husband An African American woman cries I need to care for my kids A business woman from Europe claims I was just trying to do a favor for a friend A Central American woman protests I never knew that I wasnt born in the United States no one ever told me These are the laments heard by Deacon Fran when she would ask a woman about her story stories that often changed several times in the ensuing weeks Quite often these women if given the chance and a good education could be leaders in their communities They are bright inventive resourceful but misguided This book gives glimpses into their lives Their wish is that society does not paint them all with the same brush That they can avail themselves of education learn to read good books and i     Adèle Julia Kavanagh,1858     Janice Meredith: A Story of the American Revolution Paul Leicester Ford,2023-03-12 Reproduction of the original
